

53 BELIEVED KILLED AS SWAMP BOTTOM FALLS INTO A MINE

Men Are Trapped at Work as Mud and Water
Pour Into Shaft.

BODIES ARE SWEEPED INTO LOWER LEVELS

State Inspector and Official of Michigan Company Are Among Victims.

Ipsening, Mich., Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—Fifty-three miners are believed to have lost their lives when the bottom of a swamp under which the Barnes Hecker mine near here has been extended, dropped into the shaft today.

Deepened by recent heavy rains, the bottom of the swamp gave way and a section 300 feet long and 200 feet wide fell into the mine, trapping the men at work. The mass of slush is believed to have caught most of the men on the first and third levels.

A check by officials of the mine tonight revealed that 53 were on duty at the time of the disaster, all of whom are believed to have lost their lives.

Mine Officials Trapped.

W. E. Hill, a State mining inspector, and William Tibbitt, an official of the mining company, were among those trapped. They were inspecting the shaft at the time. Officials of the State mine inspection department at Lansing could not be reached early tonight to ascertain if Hill's visit was other than a routine one.

The disaster occurred shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon. Persons reported hearing a terrific swishing thud as the huge section of mud and water dropped into the pit. Rushing to the gaping hole, they reported seeing the flood swirl about the first level 125 feet and then force itself through the outlets to the next level. As the lower reaches were flooded the muck arose again to the top level, and fed by the seepage from the surrounding district tonight had flooded the entire mine, as well as an adjoining shaft to which there was an outlet from the Barnes Hecker shaft.

Last Hope Abandoned.

Hope was held for a while that the men may have been able to reach this adjoining shaft through the outlet, but as the mud and water poured through this tunnel and flooded the shaft, what was believed to be the last chance of escape was cut off.

The Barnes Hecker mine is 1,060 feet deep and has three levels. The swamp bottom dropped into the first level, and slowly forced its way from one level to the next.

Hundreds of persons were gathered about the mouth of the shaft tonight. Among the groups were wives, children and relatives of the trapped men, some of whom refused to give up hope that in some miraculous way their loved ones had escaped death.

A score of mine rescue teams responded to first calls for aid from nearby cities in the iron mining region, but were powerless to be of any assistance.

Penetration Impossible.

The mud-flooded shaft was impossible of penetration two hours after the cave-in occurred.

A few persons on the mine surface at the time of the disaster made their way to the edge of the pit and reported seeing the bodies of a half dozen of the men swept to the lower levels.

Mine officials rigged up bailing apparatus and made a start at drawing the water from the mine, but stated there was not the slightest possibility of recovering the bodies for weeks. They had not decided if they would continue their attempts at clearing the shaft beyond the first level.

The Barnes Hecker disaster probably will be the worst of its kind in the Lake Superior mining region. Four years ago, 41 men were drowned in the Milford mine in this district under conditions similar to those of today's disaster. The drowning of 28 men in the Mansfield, near Crystal Falls, about 25 years ago was the worst previous accident on the iron range.

The Barnes Hecker mine was known as a "wet shaft" due to the amount of water seepage.

Increased Fare Demanded If Car Lines Are United; Setback for Early Merger

Ham and Hanna, at Utilities Hearing, Indicate Basis
Companies Will Insist On for Union—W. R. & E.
Terms Disclosed in Suppressed Letter Made Public—Punishment Urged If Defied.

Public hopes of an early street car merger received a sharp setback at the public hearing yesterday before the public utilities commission to canvass possible steps to bring about unified operation.

William F. Ham, president of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., said there could be no merger without increased street car fares; representatives of several citizens' organizations thought one of the immediate advantages of a merger would be reduced street car fare; Lieut. Col. J. Franklin Bell said fares ought to remain stationary for a year or two until consolidation could be effected. At the close of the hearing Col. Bell said:

"We seem to have arrived at an impasse. The companies think they have to have a fixed valuation and service at cost, as features of unification. The commission does not believe that necessary."

Col. Bell explained positively that the commission would prepare a bill, designed to bring about a merger, to be presented to Congress at the coming session. He asked officials of the two principal street car companies to submit definite merger proposals in order that they might be submitted to Congress in the form of an alternative bill, implying that the latter measure would have to stand on its own merits before Congress, without the approval of the commission.

The differences between the commission and the companies were seen to have developed last June. Ham intimated that the commission was responsible for the public not being informed of the nature of differences. He said a letter written by him to the commission set forth the disagreement in plain terms and that it was not given publicity. Later it developed that the letter found its way into one of the numerous files of the commission marked "N. F. P." meaning not for publication.

DONAHEY IS ONLY OHIO DEMOCRAT SUCCESSFUL

Gets Third Term by 16,000;
Willis Beats Pomerene
by 90,000.

RETURNS ARE COMPLETE

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—For the first time in the history of Ohio a governor has been elected to serve his third consecutive term. Complete returns tonight from Tuesday's election showed Ohioans reelected Gov. Vic Donahey (Democrat), who repeated political history of his two previous administrations when he was the only Democrat on the State ticket to be selected and the voters swept a Republican United States senator into office and selected a probable solid complement of Republicans for the remainder of the State offices.

Gov. Donahey's plurality over Meyers Y. Cooper (Republican), Cincinnati, was 16,245. The vote: Donahey, 698,271; Cooper, 682,026. United States Senator Frank B. Willis defeated Atlee Pomerene (Democrat), former senator, by approximately 90,000 votes. On virtually complete returns the vote was: Willis, 704,773; Pomerene, 616,350.

The governor gave out a terse statement which simply said his election meant two more years of hard work. Before the election he said he would not be a presidential candidate under any circumstances.

BARKLEY IS ELECTED TO SUCCEED ERNST

Lead of 23,271 Is Rolled Up by Kentucky Democrat in Senate Race.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—Kentucky has returned to the United States Senate a Democrat to succeed one of two Republican incumbents. The delegation to the lower house will remain the same—eight Democrats and three Republicans.

Unofficial returns from all except 174 out of 4,063 precincts in the State gave Alben W. Barkley (Dem.), 273,332, and Richard P. Ernst (Rep.), 250,061, a majority of 23,271 for Barkley.

R. P. Green, Republican campaign chairman, said: "It seems Barkley has won by 10,000, but we are not ready to concede the election until we have made a complete canvass of the returns. It looks as if Barkley has won by a small majority."

Senator Ernst said he had nothing to add to this statement. Democratic campaign headquarters have been claiming the election by 20,000 since last night.

INDIANA SENATORS WIN, BUT RECOUNT IS ASKED

Watson's Lead Is 12,874, While Robinson Has a Margin

539 PRECINCTS ARE OUT

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—R. Earl Peters, chairman of the Democratic State committee, said today that requests had come to him from party workers asking that he demand a recount of the vote cast Tuesday for United States senatorial candidates. The chairman said, however, that he had reached no decision to take such action, but would give the matter consideration. Return to the United States Senate of both James E. Watson and Arthur R. Robinson, Republican incumbents, seemed assured today as the tabulation of the votes cast at yesterday's election neared completion.

Returns from 3,316 out of 3,545 precincts gave Watson a majority of 12,874 over Albert Stump, Democratic candidate. The figures were: Watson, 487,488; Stump, 429,350; Robinson in 3,315 precincts had 483,104 to 461,160 for Evans Woolen, Democrat, thus giving the Republican a majority of 22,652.

English Bookmakers "Boycott" New Tax

Windsor, England, Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—For the first time in the history of English horseracing, no official starting figures were recorded at the races here today, because of a "boycott" by the bookmakers, who refused to accept bets as a protest against the betting tax which went into effect November 1.

INSURGENTS OBTAIN BALANCE OF POWER IN THE NEW SENATE

Stalemate in Legislation
Faces the President
Following Vote.

MAY REFUSE SEATS TO SMITH AND VARE

Executive's Plans, After the Defeat of Butler in Bay
State, Are Discussed.

By NORMAN W. BAXTER.
The Republican Senate majority in the Seventieth Congress will rest upon the slender foundation of but a single vote.

The seven Democratic gains, forecast soon after the count of ballots began Tuesday, are now a certainty. Oregon, the last of the doubtful States to complete its tabulation, last night announced that Frederick Steiwer had been sent to the Senate by his Republican constituents. With this verdict and that in favor of Senators James E. Watson and Arthur R. Robinson in Indiana, the die for the next Senate is cast.

The House of Representatives is safely Republican. The ratio of Democratic gains which the early returns indicated has been maintained and there will on the present showing be a disparity of fifteen seats between those the Republicans hold in the Sixty-ninth and the ones that they will occupy in the next Congress.

The Defeated Senators.

The band of senatorial losers who have been definitely relegated to private life includes:
Butler, of Massachusetts; Wadsworth, of New York; Ernst, of Kentucky; Williams, of Missouri; McCarron, of Arizona; Weller, of Maryland; and Harrell, of Oklahoma.

One question still open to debate yesterday, which was definitely settled last night, was the victory of Senators James E. Watson and Arthur R. Robinson in Indiana. The two Republican candidates had run well ahead during the tabulation of the votes, but the Democrats insisted they had a chance until the very end, and even now are reported to have made a demand for a recount.

On the basis of Tuesday's happenings political and official Washington today began to cast up the reckoning. The party figures in the next Senate will be: Republicans, 48; Democrats, 47; and Farmer-Labor, 1.

Dawes May Decide.

It may be, therefore, that Vice President Dawes will be called upon to cast the deciding vote in the organization of the new Senate, since Senator Henrik Shipstead, of Minnesota, a lone Farmer-Labor member, has before this voted with the Democrats and by doing so on this occasion could create a tie.

HAWES' MAJORITY IN MISSOURI 35,000

Democrat Defeats Williams for Senate Seat; Party Harmony Is Aided.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—George H. Williams, Republican candidate for the junior United States senatorship from Missouri, was overwhelmingly defeated for reelection by former Representative Harry B. Hawes, Democrat, it was shown today on returns from 3,824 out of 4,105 precincts, which gave Hawes 479,450 and Williams 444,390.

Hawes' victory gave Senator James A. Reed, senior United States senator from Missouri, a running mate from his own party in the national Senate, and tended to stimulate political harmony in the ranks of the State's Democratic delegation in Washington.

The Democrats gained seats in the 5th, 13th and 14th congressional districts. The election of Clyde Williams, Democratic candidate, by approximately 800 majority over Charles E. Kiefer, incumbent in the 13th district, became assured tonight. Thus, Democrats will have twelve and the Republicans four representatives in Congress.

BLOW AT DEFENSE ALIBI IS DEALT AS HALL TRIAL OPENS

Surprise Witness Tells of Visit in Home by Willie Stevens.

THOUGHT SELF NEAR SCENE OF KILLINGS

Accountant's Wife Confirms Story; Miss Mills Weeps
When on Stand.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—The first of the Hall-Mills trials was opened today, four years after the double killing upon which they are based, in the little county courthouse here modernized to accommodate a human drama already allotted a page in American criminal annals.

Opening its case, the State moved with contrasting swiftness. Without establishing the fact of death or the locality of the crime, Senator Simpson called a witness to testify, he said, that Willie Stevens was out of his home at 9 o'clock on the murder night. John L. Dixon, of North Plainfield, N. J., an accountant, hitherto unmentioned even in the lists of more than 100 prospective witnesses, was asked to deliver the first blow at a defense alibi.

He told how he had stepped from his home at about 8:30 o'clock on the night that the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, were shot down, to find Willie Stevens, one of the defendants, at the door.

Found Stevens Excited.
Stevens, who, with his brother, Henry, and his sister, the minister's widow, are on trial for murder, has asserted he spent the entire evening in question at the Hall home. His statement to this effect has been supported by Mrs. Hall.

Dixon testified that Willie told him he had just been set down from his sister's automobile and that he understood Willie to believe himself near the Parker House, a home for the aged, about 500 yards from the supposed scene of the murders.

Willie was afoot, Dixon said, and appeared excited. After directing him to a trolley line, Dixon said he lost sight of him, not seeing him get on a street car. Dixon's testimony was corroborated by his wife, who said she shook hands with Willie and found his hand "cold and clammy."

Charlotte Mills, daughter of the slain chorister, testified that she was taken by a newspaper woman to the home of Ellis Parker, Burlington county detective in Mount Holly. There, she said, Parker tried (CONTINUED ON PAGE 13, COLUMN 2.)

ENSIGN FLOED KILLED IN MIDAIR COLLISION

Leaps After Airplanes Meet, but Parachute Fails to Act Properly.

Pensacola, Fla., Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—Ensign Hickory Floed, of Portland, Ore., was killed late today when his airplane struck another machine at an altitude of 3,000 feet.

A wing was broken in the impact and Floed's machine fell. The pilot jumped about 200 feet above the ground but his parachute failed to open. The other plane landed safely.

Floed's death was the second fatality in navy aviation here this week, both because of failure of parachutes properly to function. Ensign Henry Harrison, of Cambridge, Mass., was killed Monday.

Ensign Floed is survived by his mother, Mrs. Fred Floed, of Portland.

Will Rogers Says Cash Runs Ahead Of Indorsements

Special to The Washington Post.
Dallas, Tex., Nov. 3.—Butler, of Massachusetts, got his presidential indorsement, but there is no salary connected with it. Poor Jim Wadsworth said: "Why did the voters pick on me, he didn't indorse me."

I got just what I was praying for, a tie in the Senate. Now it will be worth listening to. Dollars may be corrupt, but they beat indorsements in this or any other election.

Yours for high price votes.

EVANGELIST BOUND OVER FOR CONSPIRACY TRIAL

Held With Mother and Chief Accuser, Mrs. Sielaff, for Higher Court.

INNOCENT, AIMEE CRIES

Los Angeles, Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—Almee Semple McPherson was bound over to the superior court by Municipal Judge Samuel R. Blake, here today for trial on charges of criminal conspiracy. Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of the evangelist and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sielaff, her chief accuser, charged jointly with Mrs. McPherson, also were held for trial in the higher court.

Judge Blake's decision followed a preliminary hearing which lasted five weeks. The State charged that Mrs. McPherson perpetrated a disappearance hoax and employed Mrs. Sielaff and others to manufacture false evidence to make good her abduction story. The evangelist declared she was kidnapped from the beach at Ocean Park May 18, taken to a shack in Sonoma, Mex., and there held for ransom, until she escaped June 22.

In his decision Judge Blake said: "The issue presented to the court for decision is not the guilt or innocence of these defendants, and this court is not passing upon such an issue; that is the province of a jury. However, this court is called upon to determine whether or not the offense or offenses charged have (CONTINUED ON PAGE 5, COLUMN 6.)

BUCKNER PLANS NEW TRIAL FOR DAUGHTERTY

Will Request Court to Set
Conspiracy Case.

New York, Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—Federal Attorney Emory R. Buckner announced tonight he again would prosecute Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, whose recent trial on charges of conspiring to defraud the government resulted in a jury disagreement. Buckner said he would request the court to set trial for December.

The charges against Daugherty and Miller grew out of the transfer to a Swiss corporation of some $7,000,000 worth of war-impounded stock of the American Metals Co.

Daugherty and Miller were indicted May 7, and put on trial September 7. Neither took the stand, the chief witness being Richard Merton, German steel magnate. The jury was discharged October 11. The final vote was 7 to 5 for conviction of Daugherty, and 10 to 2 for conviction of Miller.

4 DIE, 3 WOUNDED IN PITCHED BATTLE AT TOMBS PRISON

Prisoners Slay Warden;
Snipers Finally Put an End to Rising.

SCORES SEE FIGHTING FROM THEIR OFFICES

Motorcycle Officers From All
to Noted Bastille.

New York, Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—Four men are dead and three wounded, two perhaps fatally, as the result of a spectacular outbreak late today in the Tombs, the famous central prison of New York.

Three prisoners, mysteriously supplied with arms and ammunition, attempted to shoot their way to freedom. Two were killed and the third may die. The warden was shot, and died five hours later; a keeper was instantly killed, another severely wounded and a spectator shot.

The dead are: Peter A. Mallon, warden; Hyman Amberg, charged with murder; Oliver Glantz, charged with robbery; Jeremiah Murphy, keeper.

The wounded: Daniel O'Connor, keeper; Michael McKenna, charged with murder; J. A. Studewell.

Scores See the Battle.

The shooting lasted more than half an hour and caused more excitement than any similar commotion since the Wall street explosion.

The entire battle was witnessed by scores of office workers, many of them women, from windows of buildings overlooking the prison yard. Police snipers from these windows fired on the prisoners.

The attempted escape resulted in the first riot call sounded in many years in New York. All available reserves from police headquarters, three blocks away, were rushed to the prison and motorcycle police from all over Manhattan roared across the city to the scene of the battle. Among the first to arrive was the emergency squad from headquarters, picked men armed with small arms, rifles, shotguns and gas bombs.

The streets surrounding the prison were cleared and police snipers poured bullets down at the ambushed prisoners from the windows of adjoining buildings.

No Attempt Was Suspected.

It had been a quiet day in the prison and nothing was suspected when Berg sent word that he was feeling ill and wanted to see the prison physician. A keeper was sent to his cell on the eighth tier and while he was there, Amberg and McKenna also complained of illness. The keeper took them out of their cells and in an elevator down to the first floor.

The doctor's office is close to the main prison gate on Center street. Keeper Louis Lorch was standing by this gate with the key in his hand as the men approached. Drawing automatics the prisoners suddenly ran toward him.

"Open the gate or we'll croak you," one of them shouted.

"Go to hell," Lorch retorted and dived into an alcove as the trio opened fire.

Warden Runs Up; Is Shot.

The first shots caused an uproar in the prison, and Warden Mallon came running from his office by the gate. He started toward the prisoners and pitched forward with a bullet through his body.

The prisoners then ran to the center of the prison yard, where there was a great pile of soft coal, and dug themselves in. The riot call was sounded, and soon the prison was surrounded by police with drawn guns.

It was impossible for police to enter the prison yard without being shot down before seeing their quarry, so snipers armed with rifles were sent to upper windows of the criminal courts building, which is connected with the prison by the famous "Bridge of Sighs," and of adjoining office buildings. From these vantage points the prisoners using the coal pile as fortification could be seen. Heavy firing began. The prisoners ran from the coal pile and took cover under a curved wall.

This gave them temporary protection, but they were quickly spotted and firing resumed. In a clash when the prisoners attempted to rush through a door opened with armed keepers, Murphy was killed and O'Connor wounded.

The prisoners were driven back into the yard, however, and there they stayed, making frequent (CONTINUED ON PAGE 3, COLUMN 4.)

BUSINESS AND LAW GROUPS CANVASSED FOR COMMISSIONER

Ross P. Andrews Mentioned as Merchant Candidate for Rudolph's Place.

MARYLAND RESIDENTS ELIMINATED BY INQUIRY

President's Advisers May Submit More Than One
Name to White House.

The search for a successor to District Commissioner Cuno H. Rudolph has been widened to embrace a banker, business man, or a lawyer, it was learned yesterday, with indications that it may be fruitful before the end of the week.

Turning aside from the field of bankers for the time being, the President's local advisers are scanning prospects among the business and legal ranks. An active banker or one from the two latter groups well versed in finance must be had to take over the duties of Mr. Rudolph, it is made plain.

Regarding the desire for an active banker, it is known that Joshua Evans, Jr., executive vice president of the District National Bank, is under consideration, but it is not known whether he will be available.

As a representative of the business interests, and one with a full business grasp, the name of Ross P. P. Andrews, former president of the Merchants and Manufacturers association, has been prominently mentioned. He is not known, however, whether Mr. Andrews has been approached by those having the selection of a commissioner in hand.

Maryland Residents Out.

Several prospects have been interviewed and there are some indications that the advisers may submit more than one name to the President. In this event, the qualifications and connections would be submitted with each name and the President could make a choice.

Several men, prominent in local affairs and who are looked upon as Washingtonians in every sense of the word—in fact, whose every activity is interwoven with the life of the city—have been thought of only to have an inquiry reveal that they reside in nearby Maryland.

This is true of Harry C. Cunningham, president of the Board of Trade, and George P. Hoover, local attorney, whose names were entertained.

The executive committee of the Northeast Washington Citizens association issued a statement yesterday declaring that the Eastern section of the city had never been represented by a commissioner, and urging the appointment of Evan H. Tucker, president of the association. Mr. Tucker was born and reared here, it was pointed out, and for the past 30 years has been active before Congress in behalf of local interests.

$11,257 Collected For Travelers Aid

The campaign of the Travelers' Aid society for funds to continue its work for the next year was brought to a close with a meeting of campaign workers yesterday at which additional contributions and pledges reported brought the total collected and given the society to $11,257.

Frederic A. Delano, general chairman of the campaign, and Arthur C. Moses, president of the Washington society, announced that this amount, with other moneys it was expected to receive from former contributors now out of the city and funds expected from other sources, will enable the society to carry out its $15,500 program for the year.

Catholic U. Flag Battle Ends in Tie

After an hour's struggle, in which 125 freshmen battled an equal number of sophomores for possession of the freshman banner, Catholic university's annual flag rush ended in a tie yesterday, with hundreds torn pieces of the freshmen standard evenly divided between the classes.

The rush started when members of the second year class awoke yesterday to find the freshmen flag of white with red numerals, streaming from the main flagpole in the center of the campus. Following the annual custom the freshmen were routed from their beds, and a member of their class forced to climb the greased pole and toss down the flag. The battle followed.

Drive for Washington Sanitarium Is Begun

A drive for funds with which to reopen the Washington Grove sanitarium has been launched by the Starmont Aid association. The sanitarium is a rest home for consumptives who can not afford to pay for hospital care.

At a meeting of the association yesterday it was decided to give a card party and bazaar in the ball room of the Raleigh hotel November 17 at 2 o'clock. Contributions to the fund to reopen the sanitarium should be sent to Mrs. George Cohan, 1917 Thirty-seventh street northwest.

Fire Auto Avoids Crash.

In a successful attempt to avoid colliding with an automobile at Eighth street and Maryland avenue northeast yesterday, Private Joseph Weaver, who was driving Battalion Chief Joseph E. Charles E. Martin, 31 years old, of Cumberland, Md., and his 12-year-old bride, who was Katherine Nowlin, 1228 Twelfth street northwest, returned here last night under arrest from Cumberland, where they were married Monday. Martin is charged with abduction and his bride with being a fugitive from her parents.

The girl's father and mother met the pair at Union station when they stepped from the train. Martin handcuffed to Detective Curtis Trammel and their daughter in the custody of Mrs. Byrle Whitney, of the woman's bureau. Peyton Nowlin, father of the girl-bride, told police that if Martin would agree to a two-year separation from his wife he would not press the abduction charge.

Red-Head Contest Close at Food Show

Competition was so close in the red-headed girl contest, held last night at the food show, which is being held in the Washington auditorium all of this week, that the judges threatened to decide it by tossing up a coin. Finally, after much deliberation, Miss Mabel B. Bywaters, 1337 Fifteenth street northwest, was awarded the prize. The judges were Perry P. Patrick, B. Reamer and S. W. Foreman.

A large ham, donated by the A. D. Schrock Co., was won by Miss Daisy Huddelson, 4120 Fourteenth street northwest. Miss Hazel V. Hardy, 408 Locust street, was awarded the sewing cabinet which was the grand prize last night.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING ATTACKED AS ILLEGAL

Association Votes Protest to Commissioners and House
Inquiry Committee.

URGES ELECTIVE GROUP

Charging the board of education with holding a secret and illegal meeting yesterday, the District of Columbia Public School association, at a meeting last night in the District building, passed a resolution condemning this practice and ordered its president, Capt. Julius A. Peyser, to inform the commissioners of their action and to go before the congressional committee investigating District affairs and ask for an investigation of the board of education in this respect.

Severe criticism of the public school organization was voiced by members of the association. The association gave Capt. Peyser authority to represent it before the congressional committee investigating District affairs, and to urge that the commissioners be divorced from the school system and the people of the district given suffrage and an elective school board.

The people of the District have a sympathetic Congress to listen to their woes, James G. Yaden declared, but they are losing out because they will not cooperate and present their problems to Congress in a combined effort. In a plea for suffrage and an elective school board, Mr. Yaden declared this is the only way Washington will get a board of education that will be more responsive to the desires and wishes of the people.

Capt. Peyser told the association the District receives sufficient money with which to run its public schools, and could have a far better system if the money was spent right. An elective school board will do away with this bad condition, Capt. Peyser added.

Capt. Peyser charged certain men in the District with having ulterior motives back of their pleas for national representation in Congress. These interests think that by urging national representation, which it will take about ten years to get at the present rate of speed they are going they can defeat the purpose of those who want the right to vote for a school board, he added.

Police Asked to Find Three Missing Persons

Police yesterday were asked to search for three persons reported missing from their homes. Leonore Morrisette, 62 years old, disappeared from 524 Tenth street northwest, was described as having gray hair and brown eyes and wearing a black dress, black hat and black plush coat.

Mary Van Buren, colored, 17 years old, 1502 First street northwest, was reported missing since Tuesday. When last seen she was without a hat, and wore a blue dress and brown coat, with fur collar.

The parents of Robert Johnson, colored, 11 years old, 2242 and Eleventh street northeast, reported he had been missing since Tuesday.

secretary of the Washington
Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Richardson Urged As Commissioner

That colored citizens will agitate fuller recognition in the District government was indicated yesterday when Neval H. Thomas, president of the local branch of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, addressed a letter to the President in behalf of his organization. He further proposed that Dr. George H. Richardson, president of the Federation of Civic Associations, for membership on the board of commissioners.

Thomas stated yesterday that his action was based as much on sentiment from without the District as from his local membership. He expressed the belief that several national organizations would urge wider recognition of the negro in the District of Columbia government.

Sons of American Legion Urged by Fries

Advocating consolidation of the smaller posts of the American Legion, Brig. Gen. Amos A. Fries, department commander of the order, last night told members of the Kenneth H. Nash post, No. 8, meeting at the Gavel club, that there are too many legion posts in Washington. He further proposed that the national organization sponsor an organization to be known as the Sons of the American Legion, similar to numerous other such junior orders.

Seven members were initiated. They were Arthur N. Tasker, Robert Huston, R. A. Dickson, R. H. Ham, J. B. Perry, C. R. Smith and H. Morell. Entertainment was furnished by "The Hill Billies," and Dougherty & Murray of the Earle theater.

FILLS UNEXPECTED TERM

Dorsey W. Hyde, Jr., 3122 N street northwest, assistant manager of the civic development department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, was elected secretary of the Washington Chamber of Commerce by the directors meeting in the chamber headquarters in the Homer building last night.

Mr. Hyde was elected on the third ballot by a vote of 21 to 13 over George H. Brown, a director of the chamber, the only other candidate nominated for the position.

The new secretary succeeds the late Arthur E. Seymour and he will receive $5,000 per year. Mr. Hyde will fill the unexpired term of Mr. Seymour which ends on the second Tuesday of January, 1927, at which time he must stand for reelection.

Mr. Hyde is 38 years old, and is president of the Monday Evening club, District of Columbia Library association, and the Cornell University Alumni Society of Washington, chairman of the schools committee of the local Chamber of Commerce, and a member of the Board of Trade and Georgetown Citizens association. His business experience has dealt almost exclusively with chambers of commerce with the exception of two years spent as municipal reference librarian of New York city, and as statistician for the Packard Motor Car Co. He organized the motor truck research bureau of the Packard company.

Mr. Hyde has had wide experience in advising local chambers of commerce on problems incident to their organization, management and activities. He lectured at six summer schools for chamber of commerce secretaries. He has addressed many business clubs throughout the country, and written magazine articles and books on municipal and business subjects.

Union Rejects Kellogg.

Secretary of State Kellogg yesterday was rejected chairman of the board of the Pan American union, meeting in the Pan American Union building. Dr. Enrique Olaya, Minister of Colombia, was elected vice chairman, succeeding Dr. Francisco Sanchez Latour, Guatemalan Minister.

FRIENDS OF QUEEN DEFENDED BY MARIE IN MUSEUM SPEECH

Loie Fuller "Gave Me Her Life in My Hour of Need," She Says.

SAMUEL HILL PLEDGED
AID WHENEVER NEEDED

Low, She Asserts in Reply to Critics.

Maryhill, Wash., Nov. 3. (By A. P.)—Queen Marie dedicated the Maryhill Museum of Fine Arts today in a dramatic address, in which she explained that her long journey from Roumania, which reached its climax in the bare cement halls of the museum, was a mission of love and understanding.

Referring to criticism of her visit, Marie declared she would give no other explanation of it. Her majesty touched also upon an undeciphered of adverse comment concerning her friendship for Samuel Hill, founder of the museum, and Miss Loie Fuller, former dancer, and close friend of the queen.

Dreamer and Worker.
Hill she pictured as a dreamer and worker whom she understood because, "I, too, am a dreamer and worker."

The name of Loie Fuller, the queen said, "has often been slighted," adding that the former dancer "gave me her life in my hour of need," referring to assistance rendered to the queen during the world war.

"There is a dream built into this place, a dream for today and especially for tomorrow," Marie said in dedicating the cold, unfinished walls of the square, squat structure. "Samuel Hill is my friend. He not only is a dreamer, but is a worker."

"Sometimes the things dreamers do seem incomprehensible to others, and the world wonders why dreamers don't see the way others do."

"Some have wondered at the friendship of a queen for a woman who some would call lowly. That woman is Loie Fuller. Her name has often been slighted. That woman stood by me when my back was to the wall. That woman gave me her life in my hour of need. She went to America seeking aid for my people. This has almost been forgotten by the rest of you, but I could no longer be silent."

"In this democracy there should be no gap between the high and the lowly. As woman to woman, I wish that there would be no doubt in any heart that that woman gave me hope. Samuel Hill knows this."

With the passing of two dramatic hours, for which she crossed the Atlantic and the United States, Marie was ready to begin the return journey, first touching at Oregon and Washington cities and Vancouver, B. C., before making the swing back across the continent.

The special train was halted in the center of the bridge spanning the Columbia river at Coele Falls, where the royal party had lunch. Then the queen returned to Portland, along the famous Columbia highway built by Samuel Hill, meeting her train there late today.

Green's Majority, 125,000.
Detroit, Nov. 3. (By A. P.)—Mayor Frederick W. Green, Republican, of Iowa, was elected governor of Michigan yesterday by a majority that will exceed 125,000 over William A. Comstock, Democrat, of Detroit. With Mr. Green went in a complete Republican State ticket. Returns from 2,933 precincts out of 2,933 gave Green 275,454; Comstock, 152,775.

999-YEAR PORTO RICO LEASE HELD FRAUDULENT

Lieut. Comdr. Baker Misled
Daniels and Roosevelt,
Judge Decides.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Nov. 3. (By A. P.)—Lieut. Comdr. Virgil Baker, U. S. N., retired, obtained his 999-year lease to the San Gerónimo reservation by fraud and misrepresentation, according to an opinion by Chief Justice Del Toro, made public today.

The opinion, a 64-page document, holds that the lease, obtained from the American Navy Department, is against the public policy "and incompatible with the practices of a Republican government."

In conclusion it declares that "this extraordinary contract of a lease for all most ten centuries must be annulled."

Commander Baker's counsel is expected either to appeal or move for a new trial.

The opinion touches no points of law. It summarizes the evidence, stating that, if the opinion is wrong, the record is complete, and admits of but one conclusion.

Tracing Baker's acts from 1917 to 1921, when the final lease was signed, the opinion states that the world war made it possible for the defendant "to arrive at his objective without disclosing his real intention."

The opinion says Baker deceived Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, and also the Assistant Secretary, Theodore Roosevelt, jr. The evidence would have been more complete if Col. Roosevelt had testified, the opinion holds, but the defendant failed to call him when announcing that he would do so.

It was Col. Roosevelt who signed the 999-year lease and explaining then the opinion says: "If the truth as revealed by the evidence had been known to Acting Secretary Roosevelt, he could have acted as he did only as an accomplice in a fraud to despoil the United States of a valuable piece of property, and it is impossible to imagine even that this was the case."

REAR ADMIRAL COLBY
DIES AT BOSTON HOME

Retired Navy Officer Was 80;
Once Commanded Dewey
Flagship, Olympia.

Boston, Nov. 3. (By A. P.)—Rear Admiral Harrison Gray Otis Colby, U. S. N., retired, died at his home here today after a short illness. Born in New Bedford on January 28, 1846, he had served with the coast and geodetic survey and the lighthouse service as well as the navy.

Entering the Naval Academy in 1862, he performed guardian duty along the New England coast against Confederate privateers. He was graduated in 1867.

One of his most important assignments was the organization of the national naval militia. His commands included the collier Hannibal in the Spanish war and the Concord in Philippine patrol duty and the battleship Olympia, former flagship of Dewey.

He is survived by a son, Maj. Francis G. Colby, U. S. A., and a half-brother, W. T. Lambert, of Hamilton.

4 SLAIN, 2 ARE SHOT IN MUTINY AT TOMBS

Answer Motion by Roberts
and Pomerene to Dismiss
Special Action.

Against the forces of the law, until they all were shot down. C. M. Kelly, a laborer, narrowly escaped death today in the riot.

When the shooting began Kelly fell into a gutter and lay still. The police and other witnesses thought he was dead. Presently he raised his hand and the police, thinking he was signaling to barricaded prisoners, opened fire on him. He rolled over on his back and waved a shovel, but the firing continued. Then he lay still once more, as if dead.

When the shooting was over the police lifted Kelly to his feet, white and trembling, but without a scratch.

Headed New England Watch
Nearly 20 Years.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 3. (By A. P.)—The Rev. J. Frank Chase, who for nearly twenty years directed the campaign of the New England Watch and Ward society against various vices, drug and liquor selling and gambling, died today at his home in West Roxbury. He had been ill a week from pneumonia.

His activities as secretary of the Watch and Ward society often brought him into the public eye. He became involved in a case of national note early this year when he moved against the sale of an issue of a magazine, The American Mercury, charging that certain articles were "tending to corrupt the morals of youth."

H. L. Mencken, editor, was arrested when he came to Boston and sold copies for a test case and was found not guilty when Judge Parmenter found that the issue contained nothing salacious.

Mr. Chase was a minister for six years in Methodist Episcopal churches in Boston, prior to his acceptance of the secretaryship of the society.

His alleged chief accomplice, a noncommissioned officer, Erich Klapproth, was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment; three others were acquitted and six were sentenced to from 4 months to 8 years.

Lightning Causes
Paralysis of Fish

(By the Associated Press).
Fish are subject to paralysis caused by lightning, the Bureau of Fisheries has found in a study conducted at its station at Craig Brook, Maine.

After a bolt of lightning hit trees bordering a fishpond recently, about 15 of the larger fish appeared to be lying lifeless on the bottom of the pool. Experiments disclosed that they were paralyzed. They lived several days without being able to move their bodies.

COUNSEL FOR SINCLAIR FILE IN APPEALS COURT

Answer Motion by Roberts
and Pomerene to Dismiss
Special Action.

TERM WALSH BILL VOID

Counsel for Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, under indictment on a charge of contempt in connection with his refusal to answer questions propounded by the senate committee on public lands and surveys, filed their answer yesterday in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals in opposition to the motion of Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, special government counsel, to dismiss the special appeal allowed Mr. Sinclair after his demurrer had been overruled in the lower court.

George P. Hoover, Martin W. Littleton, Col. J. W. Zevely and G. T. Stanford, counsel for Mr. Sinclair, pointed out the difference between a dismissal of the special appeal in the contempt case and the dismissal of the special appeal in the oil conspiracy cases. The dismissal of the latter appeal was based on the Walsh bill and now counsel for the government asks that the special appeal in the contempt case also be dismissed on the strength of the Walsh bill.

In the contempt case, counsel for Mr. Sinclair state, the lower court expressed the desire that the appellate tribunal pass on the questions of law involved, whereas in the oil conspiracy cases the lower court, of course, was opposed, as far as it could be, to the allowance of a special appeal.

Justice Adolph A. Hoehling overruled Mr. Sinclair's demurrer to the contempt indictment, and in doing so he said:

"It would seem more appropriate that such lack of lawful authority in Congress, as alleged in the Sinclair demurrer, if such there be, should be adjudged by the appellate tribunal rather than by the trial court."

According to counsel for Mr. Sinclair, the Walsh bill is "void, being a fraud to despoil the United States of a valuable piece of property, and it is impossible to imagine even that this was the case."

PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germ.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, pneumonia, and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Fortunate

How often do we hear, "Her face is her fortune!" Every girl would like the good fortune pretty Miss Mary Smith, of 113 Clinton place, Yonkers, N. Y., possesses in her exquisite complexion—which she says comes from never using any but the exquisitely textured Black and White "Incense of Flowers" Face Powder. She adds: "This is surely the best powder I've ever used—best in texture, in color tones and in clinging quality. It keeps my skin soft and fine, never irritating or drying it out, and gives the smooth, velvety appearance every girl wants."

This lovely face powder, entrancingly fragrant with "Incense of Flowers" perfume, and bearing the Black and White label of highest quality and excellence at the low popular prices, can be gotten from dealers everywhere for 50c.

RITCHIE'S MAJORITY
MORE THAN 60,000;
TYDINGS' IS 55,000

Governor Exceeds Victory of
Two Years Ago by 20,000,
Despite Third-Term Talk.

ZIHLMAN LONE WINNER ON REPUBLICAN TICKET

Carries District by 10,000;
Gambrell Defeats Mudd;
Broening Leads G.O.P.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie was re-elected for a third term by a majority of more than 60,000, and Representative Millard E. Tydings defeated Senator O. E. Weller by more than 55,000 votes, according to the official count returned from Maryland last night.

With only eight precincts out of 1,184 in the gubernatorial race to be heard from, Ritchie had 203,340 and Addon E. Mullikin, his Republican opponent, had 143,135.

There were only 60 precincts outstanding in the senatorial race, and the vote stood: Tydings, Democrat, 191,744; Weller, Republican, 126,324.

The majorities exceeded the most sanguine hopes of the Democrats. The governor's majority, instead of diminishing because of supposedly popular prejudice against a third term, exceeded by 20,000 the vote which he received when he ran the second time.

The Democratic sweep left Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, chairman of the House District committee, as the sole surviving Republican in either House or Senate. He defeated his Democratic opponent, Frank W. Misch, by approximately 10,000 votes.

The Democrats took five of the six seats in the House, Representative Stephen W. Gambrell, Democrat, incumbent, being returned with a majority of between 3,500 and 4,000 over S. B. R. Mudd, his Republican opponent in the Fifth district. This was the one district held by a Democrat in which the Republicans had expected to make a turnover.

Mr. Zihlman's majority over Frank W. Misch, his Democratic opponent, will reach about 10,000, it was indicated.

He carried all five counties in his district, including the Democratic stronghold of Montgomery county, where he had a majority of 824. He carried Washington, his opponent's home, by 115 votes, and piled up a 6,500 majority in his home, Allegany.

There was no change in the State's vote in the House, both Zihlman and the Democratic winner in the First district, Representative T. Alan Goldsborough, being classed as drys, with the other four members wet.

In the Senate the wet Tydings, who was supported by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, while Weller had the support of the Antislavery League.

Weller, although voting against the Volstead act, was not considered an active wet in the Senate.

In the Third district, now represented by John Philip Hill, the Democrats elected Vincent L. Palmisano with a majority of 7,000 over the Republican candidate, John J. McGinnity, a close friend of Hill.

In the Second district, now held by Tydings, the Democratic candidate, William P. Cole, Jr., defeated Linwood L. Clark, Republican, by 6,000 votes. He had no indorsement of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, which turned thumbs down on Clark.

Representative J. Charles Linthicum, Democrat, incumbent, and a wet from the Fourth district, easily defeated Julius F. Diehl, Republican.

Ritchie overcame the hostility which he had experienced in the counties in the past. Last time he had to depend solely on Baltimore city. He lost the counties by 1,000 votes. This time he carried the counties by approximately 14,000 votes and the city, it is believed, by approximately 46,500.

Tydings' majority in the city was 33,000, and he is expected to show a margin of 17,000 when the full county vote is tabulated.

The full Democratic State ticket was swept into office with the Ritchie-Tydings momentum. William S. Gordy, Jr., for comptroller, Thomas H. Robinson, for attorney general, and James A. Young, for the clerkship of the court of appeals, ran along closely with their ticket, although Robinson's majority over William P. Broening, Republican, was cut. Broening ran ahead of his ticket. It was believed Robinson's majority over him would be less than 20,000.

Tydings, the new senator, has attracted considerable attention in the House with his ability to debate and generally to handle himself on the floor. He is a world war hero, having enlisted in the army during the world war as a private and risen to the rank of lieutenant colonel. He was decorated with the distinguished service medal, and cited by Generals Pershing, Upton and Morton.

He is 36 years old, a lawyer and unmarried. He lives at Harve de Grace. He was first elected to the House in 1922 and re-elected in 1924. Previously he had served as speaker of the State house of delegates.

Besides his world war service, Tydings served on the Mexican border in 1916. His service overseas was with the Twenty-ninth division in a machine-gun outfit.

Zihlman's election was for his sixth consecutive term. He rose from a glass blower to play an active part in the Maryland legislature before going to Congress.

SEEN AS ELECTION RESULT

a victory, based on the failure of the Democrats to win control of either house of Congress, and the fact that in the nation-wide balloting for the House so little antagonism was shown, through the result, to the works of the Coolidge regime.

They did not hesitate to agree, however, that the President during the next two years would face a First—A legislative stalemate, because of the control which progressive members will exercise in the Senate, which will likely prevent the adoption of any "strict administration measures."

Second—The prospect of another battle between the Senate and the President, such as have made history in the past, and have, except in the notable exception during the Wilson administration, tended to draw the President and the people closer together.

Third—The serious possibility that the Democrats and Progressives will, as has already been suggested, make the unseating of William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, one of their first major acts.

President's Plans Discussed.

Discussion was, of course, universal as to the relation between Tuesday's election and the future plans of President Coolidge. The opinion was confirmed that in the defeat of Senator Butler in Massachusetts the President had sustained a bitter personal blow, which was hardly softened by the fact that the voters of the chief executive's home State took his advice in so far as Gov. Fuller was concerned and sent the Bay State governor back to the statehouse by an overwhelming majority.

There was some speculation on the possible retirement of Senator Butler as chairman of the Republican national committee, a post which he occupied before and during his tenure of office in the Senate. The general belief, however, was that the Massachusetts man, who was placed in the office at the direction of the President, would not step down until Mr. Coolidge had definitely made up his mind to run again, if that is his intention.

If this proves to be a fact, no one in Washington thinks that a change in the management of Republican affairs will be made for several months, since the present occupant of the White House is not likely to declare himself in relation to 1928 much sooner than that.

Just as political Washington was convinced that regardless of what his friends might say, the election had cast a shadow over the Coolidge sunlight, so was it generally conceded that of all the Democratic presidential possibilities Gov. Alfred E. Smith alone had emerged with a greatly enhanced reputation.

The feat of the New York leader in winning his fourth term at Albany by a majority that will go beyond 250,000 was a problem even his enemies in the party acknowledged the organization must face in making its plans for 1928. That he carried Judge Robert F. Wagner into the senate with him over Senator James W. Wadsworth only added to his renown and prestige.

Compared to the accomplishments of the other favorite sons his was by far the most notable one. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of nearby Maryland, gained his third term and on election showing ranked next to Smith in his party. Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, solidified his position by putting over the victory of Harry B. Hawes in Missouri and Gov. Vic Donahay escaped prohibition as a possibility by winning the Ohio governorship again, but less impressively than ever before. Atlee Pomerene suffered defeat in his race against Senator Frank B. Willis and will have that to overcome in any efforts which may be made to send him to the White House.

Gov. Smith not only did what he had set out to do, but more in

DEMOCRATS LOSE 4 IN PRINCE GEORGES

Win All Other Offices; Capture the Control of County Commission.

The Democrats took every office save four in Prince Georges county, according to complete but unofficial returns. They wrested control of the county commission from the Republicans, but dropped one of their solid delegation in the State legislature.

William T. Davis, Republican candidate for registrar of wills, defeated Edward A. Fuller, Democrat, 6,026 votes to 4,786.

Edward L. Latimer, Republican, with 5,663 votes, was successful in the race for county surveyor over Roy T. Fowkes, Democrat, who received 4,625, and William A. Duval, Republican, with 5,394, defeated J. August Miller, Democrat, who polled 4,867.

Frank Small, Jr., was the successful Republican candidate for the house of delegates.

The four Democrats elected to the county commission were: Harry M. Bowen, 6,424; Brice Bowie, 6,721; Theodore B. Middleton, 6,092, and George W. Waters, Jr., 5,058. Charles S. Early, Democrat, defeated Thomas H. Garrison, Republican, for sheriff.

Other results in the county were: For governor—Ritchie, 6,555; Mullikin, 5,027.

For United States senator—Tydings, 6,097; Weller, 4,889.

With the exception of the congressional race, and that for the chief judgeship of the Sixth judicial circuit, the Democrats made a clean sweep in Montgomery county with majorities ranging from 500 to more than 2,700, according to complete official returns yesterday.

It was the heaviest vote ever registered in the county and the Republicans polled the greatest strength they have ever shown. Election workers asserted, in fact, that had the Republicans all voted their tickets straight they would have gone heavily into the strongly entrenched Democratic machine.

Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, Republican, running with the Republican leaders almost unanimously hostile to him, carried the county over his Democratic opponent and with the greatest majority which the county has ever given him.

For rank L. Hewitt and possibly one other were the only party leaders to help him. Zihlman received 6,616 votes while Frank W. Misch, Democrat, received 5,140.

Zihlman, in fact, received a greater majority than did E. Brooke Lee, Democratic leader, in his race for the house of delegates.

Judge Urner Re-elected.

Chief Judge Hammond Urner, Republican, was re-elected to his position over Samuel A. Lewis, Democrat. Urner received 7,373 votes and Lewis 4,882.

Preston B. Ray, Democratic candidate for the clerk of the circuit court to succeed himself, led his ticket, winning over Alexander R. Shephard by a vote of 7,557 to 4,842.

It took 24 hours to count the ballots, the count not being completed until 7 o'clock last night. The workers remained on duty continuously, stopping only to eat. Silver Spring was the last precinct to report.

The results:

For governor—Mullikin (Rep.), 5,685; Ritchie, 7,060.

For comptroller—Gordy (Dem.), 6,992; Goodell, 5,488.

For attorney general—Broening (Rep.), 5,457; Robinson (Dem.), 6,919.

For clerk of the court of appeals—Mrs. Chase (Rep.), 5,223; Young (Dem.), 6,959.

For United States senator—Tydings (Dem.), 6,563; Weller (Rep.), 5,491.

For State senator—Eugene Jones (Dem.), 7,176; Mrs. Mary T. Stock (Rep.), 5,249.

For house of delegates—George L. Edmonds (Dem.), 6,603; Charles T. Johnson (Rep.), 5,933; Richard T. Lansdale (Dem.), 5,570; E. Brooke Lee (Dem.), 6,617; James M. Mount (Rep.), 5,742; Walter P. Plumley (Rep.), 4,938; Gertrude M. Stevens (Rep.), 5,508; Harvey J. White (Dem.), 6,371.

For register of wills—Hattan A. Waters (Rep.), 5,386; Perrie E. Waters (Dem.), 6,909.

For county treasurer—John Gardner, Democrat, 7,525; Richard C. D. Hunt, Republican, 4,910.

For State's attorney—Robert Peterson, Democrat, 7,009; Harold C. Smith, Republican, 5,535.

For county surveyor—Clairborne H. Mannar, Republican, 5,425; John N. Starkey, Jr., Democrat, 6,805.

For county commissioner—First precinct, Hiram W. Harvey, Republican, 5,578; J. Forest Walker, Democrat, 6,707.

Second district—William H. Burdett, Republican, 5,701; Robert L. Hickerson, Democrat, 6,559.

Third district—Clagett C. Hilton, Democrat, 6,707; Windsor W. Hodges, Republican, 5,407.

Fourth district—Frank Karn, Republican, 5,412; Benjamin C. Perry, Democrat, 6,862.

Fifth district—Lacy Shaw, Democrat, 7,140; Gerald H. Warthen, Republican, 5,655.

NOT ON NATIONAL ISSUES.

Tuesday's elections throw little light upon the people's attitude toward tariff revision, taxation, war debts, radicalism, the world court or any other national question except possibly prohibition; and even on the question of prohibition each side may claim a victory. Dry senators have been elected in States which favored the liquor referendum, and the number of dry representatives returned to Congress is as large as ever. One or two candidates for the Senate have lost, partly because they were dry. So there is glory enough for both wets and dries, and the question stands where it stood before so far as Congress is concerned. The majorities voting for modification of the Volstead act in several States indicate that the movement against prohibition will be pressed until a national decision can be obtained. But this is not a question which the two great parties can make an issue between them, for the parties themselves are partly wet and partly dry.

Although Democratic leaders strove to press tariff revision as an issue, the voters paid little attention to the subject. They made their decisions on personal grounds, or on local questions. They did not seem to care how candidates stood on the tariff question, or on the world court question, or on the question of collecting war debts.

Senator Pat Harrison construes the result of the election to be a "stinging rebuke" to the Coolidge administration. This observation may apply to Massachusetts, but it does not seem to apply elsewhere. If the people had been bent upon administering a stinging rebuke to the administration there would have been emphatic discussion of national questions and policies during the campaign, and normally Republican States would have gone Democratic. But this did not happen. The seats gained by Democrats in the Senate have been usually held by Democrats. Neither party made inroads into the strongholds of the other. The Republicans hold a majority in the Senate, which they would have lost if the country had made up its mind to turn against Mr. Coolidge.

Mr. Coolidge's appeal to Massachusetts voters could not offset the disparity between Mr. Butler and Mr. Walsh in their own appeals to the voters. Mr. Walsh is a remarkable campaigner, while Mr. Butler is not. The wet vote of Boston is credited, also, with a large share of the credit for Walsh's election. If national issues had been paramount, Mr. Coolidge's appeal would have had greater effect; but as the voters of Massachusetts were considering only persons and local questions, the President's appeal was not in itself sufficient to overcome Mr. Butler's handicaps. Probably a large proportion of Massachusetts Republicans look with composure upon the defeat of Mr. Butler, while they may still support the policies championed by President Coolidge.

NO MORE NEEDLEWOMEN.

A New York charitable institution has about reached the conclusion that the race of fine old gentle needlewomen has become extinct. Back in the late eighties Margaret A. Howard was one of New York's most famous designers of costumes. Those were the days when women's frocks were handmade; the suit and cloak business on a quantity production basis had not yet been developed. The creations of Miss Howard and the nimble fingers of those who plied their profession under her guidance brought her a fortune. She died in 1919, without relatives, and leaving behind a little more than half a million dollars.

Provision was made that the bulk of her fortune was to be used in establishing an institution where aged needlewomen possessing certain required qualifications could spend the remainder of their days in ease. Out of this grew the Margaret A. Howard Home, at Tarrytown, on the banks of the Hudson, where a wonderful old residence has been converted into what might easily be mistaken for a country club. The trustees have scoured the State of New York, and within its broad confines have found only eighteen women who seem eligible to membership.

This home, however, is a most hospitable place, and yearns for more members weary with a losing battle with old age and poverty and possibly dreaming of just such a place in which to spend the remainder of their years. The head of this home was a former associate of its founder. Her ambition for the home is that it shall give comfort and happiness in their old age to women who have labored long years in a decaying profession. There is room and to spare for twelve or fifteen more members, but diligent search throughout the Empire State has failed to discover them. No hidebound rules restrict the membership, save only that to be eligible candidates must be of good character, more than 60 years of age and expert needlewomen. It would seem that such a charity goes a-begging only because none of this profession now survive.

PROSPERITY REMAINS.

Election of a Republican majority in the House of Representatives sufficiently large to assure complete control of that body through the Seventieth Congress is the one result of last Tuesday's political struggle in which Republicans may take consolation. Election of a Republican House means that the protective tariff policy will not be disturbed.

The election of a House pledged to reduction of the tariff to a point dangerously near the free-trade line would have unsettled business throughout the United States. Production in all probability would have begun to slow down, and this would have been accompanied by lower wages and a loss of earning power among American workmen.

Inasmuch as tariff and revenue legislation must originate in the House the reduction of the tariff to the point near the free-trade line to the vanishing point presents no particular difficulties in this respect. Then, too, President Coolidge with his veto power, holds the final trump card with which to insure continued prosperity. There now can be no serious agitation for downward tariff revision during the next two years, and by the end of that period the conditions that swayed voters in many sections on Tuesday may be so improved as to remove entirely the feeling of discontent that found emphatic expression in some States.

There are individual tragedies growing out of Tuesday's elections that will bring deep regret to Republican hearts. Some of the party candidates for the Senate met the fate to which they were foredoomed; others fell, unexpected victims of voters aroused over purely local issues, but the cardinal issue before the people withstood the bitter attack and remained triumphant amid a Democratic victory. There is good reason for congratulation in this fact, for continued prosperity under Coolidge is assured.

OUT AT THE ZOO

It is probable that a sigh of relief was exhaled by the commissioner of immigration when he learned that the Smithsonian institution had decided to send James and Saidi—family names not known—back to Africa. Jim and Saidi had been in the country for some time, and had been admitted temporarily to attend to the wants and vagaries of some 1,600 zoological and ornithological additions to the population of the National Zoological park.

These newly imported denizens of the great Washington free show, spent 45 days in the journey from their native habitat to the shores of the United States, and but for the loving care of James and Saidi, who thoroughly understand how to handle all sorts of infants, from baby giraffes to purple-faced monkeys, to say nothing of the elephant shrew which, according to the Smithsonian authorities, "looks like a combination of an elephant, kangaroo and rat," it is feared that nostalgia and other troubles, which affect animals in captivity, might have resulted in depleting the Smithsonian-Chrysler collection.

It is not known that the "quota" of immigrants from Tanganyika is exhausted, so that it is possible that James and Saidi might have been permitted to remain in the country if they had decided to apply for the privilege, but the announcement is made that they are to be returned to their native country after a brief visit in Washington. So the immigration bureau is relieved of the necessity for rendering a decision as to their status.

In the meantime the National zoo is being prepared for the accommodation of twice as many animals as has heretofore found a home within its limits.

It will be several months before the companions of the "blue monkeys, blue and black duikers, and the dikdik," which have been so tenderly cared for by James and Saidi, together with their many companions, have their quarters arranged sufficiently to warrant them in sending out invitations to the children of Washington to come to the zoo to "see who's here." When the new buildings are completed and the show opens, what a crowd there will be at the tea party!

PROSPEROUS SANTO DOMINGO.

The report of the secretary of the treasury of the Dominican republic, just issued, shows that remarkable progress has been made during the last three years. When the American forces of the military occupation were withdrawn from Santo Domingo, after installing the constitutional government of Gen. Horacio Vasquez, who had been elected by an overwhelming majority, many friends of the Dominican republic doubted the capacity of the people to maintain an orderly government, capable of administering the country with honesty and ability. The administration of President Vasquez, however, has set at rest all doubts. The finances of the country have been so well handled that, notwithstanding commercial depression, the increase in public revenues has been continuous, thus allowing President Vasquez to carry out public works leading to the opening of new sources of national wealth.

The Dominican republic, after complying with all its international obligations, closed the fiscal year with a balance of $1,608,098 after covering expenses amounting to $1,135,555.87. In this sum is included the complete amortization of the 1918 loan of $4,200,000 and the $20,000,000 loan of 1908, of which there remained outstanding $1,887,400. These remaining bonds have been called for redemption, on February 1, 1927, funds being deposited with the fiscal agent in New York. The public debt of the Dominican republic has been reduced to less than $10,000,000.

The efforts made by the Vasquez administration to develop agriculture and to establish better means of communication have given an extraordinary impulse to agricultural development. The Dominican people are now annually exporting grain worth more than $5,000,000, which formerly could not be sent out of the country on account of lack of transportation facilities. The increase in production is due also to the program of irrigation carried out by the administration, several million dollars having been spent on irrigation works in the northern and southern regions of the republic.

The prosperous state of the Dominican finances induced the United States Senate to ratify the last convention made with the Dominican republic, by which that country was authorized to contract for a loan of $25,000,000. The Dominican government did not think wise at the time to use that authorization, but with the remarkable development of the national resources demanding better facilities for the exportation of the country's products, it has now decided to contract for a loan of $10,000,000, which will have ample guarantee. This sum is to be spent on irrigation works and the improvement of some of the harbors in order to accommodate vessels of deep draft.

The Dominican republic has a splendid future. It is a rich cocoa producing country, and also produces sugar, tobacco, coffee, grains and precious woods, which are considered among the best in the world. The great hardwood forests, which have not been exploited because of the lack of roads, are now open to development. Santo Domingo offers exceptional opportunities for the safe and profitable investment of American capital.

NEW YORK DEMOCRATS.

The one rift in the cloud of defeat which smothered the Republicans of New York in Tuesday's elections is found in the fact that Republican control of the legislature is assured. With reduced majorities in both houses Republicans will organize the Senate and a Republican speaker will preside over the assembly.

This condition curtails the power of the governor in the matter of the reorganization and consolidation of the county governments, which was to have been on his program had he been assured of party support. But that plan of the Democrats to reduce the senatorial representation of their opponents must be set aside.

During his term in the State senate Judge Wagner made vigorous efforts to secure the enactment of a personal registration law. Under the New York statutes personal registration is not required in the matter of qualified voters residing outside the cities and large villages. The depositing of a ballot in an election this year assures the registration of the voter for the next election unless the name is stricken from the lists for cause. A qualified elector failing to vote in one election may be registered for the next by his party managers, a relative or a friend.

It is understood to have been the plan of the Democrats, had they succeeded in capturing the legislature, to amend the registration act by making the requirements for casting a ballot in the city apply also to all the rural voters. In view of the fact that registration days are usually set during the harvesting and thrashing season when farmers are indisposed to spend the time away from their crops, even to save their voting rights, it was expected that the Warner bill to require personal registration in rural communities would have been forced through, and, of course, would have had the approval of the governor. Like the proposed consolidation of some of the smaller counties, and the diminishing of the total number of these civil divisions, this attempt to curtail the rural representation in the legislature must be postponed until such time as a Democratic governor can be assured of the support of a Democratic legislature.

LIBERTY OF THE PRESS.

Since the sixth attack against Mussolini in Italy has been in a turmoil. Riots and bloodshed have been the order of the day and apparently the disorders are spreading. Tuesday witnessed many demonstrations in all parts of the country against antifascists. In Genoa, the premises of the newspaper Lavoro, and in Venice the Gazzettino, were invaded and badly damaged last Tuesday. Finally twelve opposition newspapers and magazines, among them Liberal, Catholic, Socialist, and Syndicalist organs, were suspended from publication, and the licenses of three others revoked by prefectural decree.

In England, the Manchester Guardian holds the unique position among British newspapers of being the accredited organ of liberalism in the "provinces," as distinct from London. Despite much discouragement in recent years because of the dwindling away of the Liberal party and the bitter dissension which has prevailed among leaders of liberalism, it has consistently kept the flag flying through good and evil. The presiding genius of this great newspaper is Mr. C. P. Scott, who has been its editor for the past 55 years. He recently celebrated his eightieth birthday, and the occasion was made memorable by the presentation of a bust of the editor to the city. On the day of the presentation Mr. Scott had something to say on the necessity and functions of a free press. His declaration on the subject is deserving of the most serious consideration, as will be seen from the following extract:

In the course of a fairly long working life I have seen the newspaper as an institution grow from small things to very great things. It has grown with the growth of popular government in the country. I don't think that is a mere coincidence. The one can hardly exist without the other. A free press is essential to the working of the modern democratic state. A democracy uninformed is a blind giant, who may destroy the very things which he ought most to value, and who may end by destroying himself. The first act of a tyranny is to suppress or shackle the press. Let us never forget that the liberty of unlicensed printing is the foundation of all our liberties.

The history of tyranny follows an invariable pattern. It is probable that Mussolini could profit vastly from serious consideration of the words of Mr. Scott.

EVERYBODY LOST.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The British coal strike, according to latest figures, has cost so far nearly $2,500,000,000. This takes into consideration the loss of the coal business, the railroads and the steel trade. Outside of this there is a general let-down in industry, higher prices for the public as cold weather begins, the government's enormous subsidy, which accomplished nothing, and generally low spirits. Incidentally the miners are suffering and everybody is the loser in this unfortunate labor situation.

PRESS COMMENT.

Say Kansas?

Chanute Tribune: Half-way between Florida and California isn't such a poor place to live.

Let Bad Enough Alone.

Milwaukee Journal: We fear that the distinguished gloomy dean would be a total loss as a bond salesman.

Unnecessary Question.

Boston Transcript: Of course, in the case of those who say they see great increase in drinking it is fair enough to ask where they look.

Add Definitions.

Arkansas Gazette: A record grape crop is predicted for 1926. Naivete consists in believing that this indicates a record jelly production.

The Chicago Plan.

Nashville Banner: When China decided to adopt some form of self-government, how deplorable and unfortunate it was that it had to select the Chicago plan!

Chance to Gerry-mander.

Philadelphia Bulletin: Mineral county, Nevada, gets the big navy arsenal. The county polled 498 votes in 1924, and the arsenal will just nicely double its population.

Advice to Destructionists.

Detroit News: It is not noted that very many large banks and public offices are closed on the birthdays of those who write books destroying another "Washington Myth."

Better Be Careful.

Norfolk Virginian-Pilot: Gossip from London has it that the Prince of Wales is acquiring an American accent. He'd better go easy with it or some of his countrymen will be selling him their castles.

Chicago News: Even where democracy abdicates temporarily in favor of a dictatorship, that dictatorship survives only as long as it respects the spirit of democracy and serves the end of the whole nation.

Saddening Experience.

Ohio State Journal: Another rather disconcerting and saddening experience is to look up a prominent friend of about your age or perhaps a year or two older in "Who's Who" and find he's 13 years younger.

Notice to Honkers.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The health commissioner of Chicago says that noise is cheating the city dweller out of seven precious years of his life. Will the motorist who toots his horn for his own delectation please take notice?

Extend the Principle.

Philadelphia Inquirer: An English inventor has produced a shoe that can be regulated to the growth of a child's foot. A great saving might be effected if the principle could be applied to the hats of a lot of men who have acquired a little brief fame.

Universal Languages.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: English has been adopted as the official language by the Pan-Pacific Scientific Congress which is meeting in Tokyo. This action, which was not unopposed, was a sensible acknowledgment of an apparent fact. English comes as near being a "universal" tongue in the Far East as, for instance, French does in the Near East. The only sugges-

Civilization Marches On

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MANY, many years ago a creature of gigantic proportions and primitive construction came out of the ooze and slime in which it had dwelt and began a slow and awkward climb toward the mountain top.

For all its great size and tremendous strength it did not move of its own volition. It did not so much as know where it was going. It came out of the slime and began to climb upward in compliance with a law of which it had little knowledge.

There were vermin on the great creature. Some of them were noisy and some were industrious and some were stupid, but all alike were convinced that they had much to do with the mammoth's movements.

A few of them—tiny, buzzing creatures with a fine opinion of themselves—sat just back of the great creature's ears and buzzed with a frenzy of importance and said: "See! We are driving him. If it wasn't for us, he never would take another step."

Others, not content with the great creature's choice of routes, assembled on his back and exchanged excited remarks about its duty to take the situation in hand. They were, as a matter of fact, possessed by some influence; for when they assailed the mammoth in a body they were sufficiently annoying to drive him temporarily from his course. But when their fury was spent or their short lives terminated, he resumed his placid way straight up the mountain. This way and that he was turned at intervals by his tormentors, but he lived on and they did not, and the deviations were slight and of no more than momentary significance.

Up and up and up he climbed, because the law that was older and greater than himself impelled him to climb; and always the vermin scurried about on his great body and moved to higher altitudes because they were as impotent as he. They, also, were creatures of the law—pawns of destiny—but they gave themselves credit for all that happened and even at times solemnly assured one another that the great creature on whose back they rode was a product of their own ingenuity.

The creature, as you know, is civilization. It is yet far from the mountain top, but it climbs steadily, for climbing means development and development is the ordained scheme of the universe.

(Copyright, 1926)

And brings frequent explosions and hurried trips to mountain summer resorts.

The Everlasting Duel.

Brooklyn Daily Eagle: Boston University has two courses, one selling women how to buy, and another telling sales people how to sell to women. The confusion that might result from a swapping of classes is clear enough. There's an ever-lasting duel between buyers and sellers, and it's not over yet.

The 12-Day Week.

Baltimore Sun: England now discusses with some interest the proposal contained in H. G. Wells' latest book that the world shall adopt a twelve-day week, with eight days for work and four consecutive days of rest. This, like Henry Ford's five-day work week, will be opposed in America, where anxious citizens deem any such scheme on the ground that the unregenerate would stay away from church so much oftener.

Here and There.

Milwaukee Sentinel: The best wheat grower in Italy has a nice new motor plow and 20,000 lire from the government. Mussolini presented them to Giuseppe Santagati for raising 32 bushels per acre on a 160-acre field where only 8 bushels grew last year. In the United States the achievement would probably call imperatively for new farm legislation.

Sage Advice From Sageland.

Atchison Globe: A farm heavily infested with noxious weeds is already mortgaged, just as a poorly managed business in town is mortgaged. If salaried people spend more than they earn their future is mortgaged. Avoid the mortgage, no matter what line you are in, or what walk of life you follow.

In the Vernacular.

Morrill News: "Hay fever," says Dr. Ira O. Church, Topeka health officer, "is a condition of hypersensitiveness to pollen proteins, and is produced chiefly by the inhalation of wind-borne pollens." Translated into simpler language, the Doc means that dust from certain weeds gets into the sneezer, causing a traffic jam, which diverts necessary fluids from the nasal tracts into the eyes, ears

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Economic Effect of the Election.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The economic effect of the election, either nationally or internationally, is negligible. There was no economic issue before the people. The Democrats undertook to inject the tariff, but the voters appear to have paid little attention to it. In Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois, all largely dependent upon a program of protection, the contests were made along other lines.

The Democrats undertook to inject the question of tariff reduction in the next Congress, but the voters evidently paid little attention to it. Again there was an effort to stir the waters with the war debt proposition, and here and there a world court ripple, but it was hardly a ripple.

As far as the great economic problems are concerned, the voters apparently gave little thought to them. It is reported that France watched the election hoping that something might come out of it to throw light on the French war debt problem. It was hardly mentioned in any State.

Is this evidence that the people are getting tired of the sparring in Congress over economic problems, or are they indifferent and willing to leave those matters to 1928? Despite all the prelection discussion and publicity given to the tariff, taxation, war debts and international trade, it can not be said that the election in any State turned on a single one of these problems.

Local issues, personalities and prohibition appear to have occupied the center of the stage in almost every State. However, this may be a breathing spell before the big battle of 1928.

Driver's Etiquette.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While driving a small car north on Fourteenth street last night, I was compelled to stop behind a street car, which had stopped to discharge an old gentleman. He descended from the rear platform and crossed the tracks to the other side of the street, hesitating to let the street car pass and then again to see how I was going to proceed. I waited until he had crossed to the south-bound track before making a start ahead.

Directly back of me was waiting a heavy roadster (I do not know its make). The instant the street car door was closed and before the car started, he honked his horn with the evident purpose of goading me to move ahead. When he did get into motion and he passed me, I asked him if he expected that I was going to run the street car passenger down and kill him so that I might prepare a clear way ahead for him, or words to that effect. He replied that he only wanted me to get out of his way. Common sense dictated under the circumstances that the only way to clear the way for "his majesty" was to proceed forward.

This type of driver is one upon whom the spotlight of public attention might be focused, to good advantage, until he desists from the practice and admits that, until he has clear vision ahead, he will have to leave the matter of moving at the proper time to the one ahead, who can see. He may rest assured that the driver in front of him is behaving just as he would, if he were in the lead.

Why Chestnut Farms Milk Is Rated Highest by the D. C. Health Dept.

Inspection for Your Protection

THE Iron-Hearted Inspectors of the Health Department do not excuse or forgive uncleanliness. They swoop down upon the dairy farms unheralded—and invariably find the farms that supply the Chestnut Farms Dairy in a state of creditable cleanliness—everything tidily shipshape—consistently clean. Chestnut Farms' own inspectors call as regularly as the Government operatives. These strict inspections are made for you, that you may know which milk is the safest and richest—the kind you should give to your children—every day. Milk is so important in the diet of children that you cannot afford to give them any but the best.

To have the superior qualities of Chestnut Farms Milk costs no more. A phone call will arrange for the regular delivery of this milk which, in the tests and inspections made by the Health Department, is rated higher than any other obtainable in Washington.

FASHION SPECIALIZATION

ASSURES FASHION RIGHTNESS

«The third floor is the Fashion floor»

To satisfy the innate taste and desire of womankind for fashions that are not only fashion-right, but particularly and individually created for definite types and personalities—fashion specialization—is the idea of our specialized fashion sections.

So we go to the fashion center—Paris—for the modes that typify the demands and requirements of each and every woman.

Our collection of fashions reflects not only the charm and wearableness of the master modistes' creations, but exemplifies as well, their newest and smartest styles of the season.

For instance—Martial et Armand's new Bat-wing sleeve and the coat-effect frock; Premet's distinctive use of fringe and rhinestone and sequin trimmings. Worth is noted for his drapes; and many of the smartest sleeves take their inspiration from Jenny, who is always counted upon for something unusual.

You see the Patou influence in smart sports clothes, and the high African-crown hat of Agnes in its many variations. Goupy introduced the smart note of Russian pony as a trimming—and practically every couturier of note uses both sides of a single fabric or combine two fabrics.

The Fashion Section as a whole has been divided into individual Specialized Sections to assure display and selection on an equality with the fashions themselves—The Walnut Room, a shop of Finer Frocks; The French Room for Exclusive Hats; the New Section for Women's Shoes and Misses' Shoes; separate sections for Women's Dresses, Misses' Dresses, Women's Coats, Misses' Coats, Larger Women's Apparel, Little Women's Apparel, Sportswear, Millinery, Blouses, Sweaters, Muslin Underwear, Knit Underwear, Home Frocks, and handsome new display rooms for Negligees, Corsets, Uniforms and Aprons.

So we repeat: Fashion Specialization assures Fashion-Rightness.

COOLIDGE ORDERS FLAG FLOWN ARMISTICE DAY

Proclamation Calls on People to Observe November 11
With Thanksgiving.

SEEKS PEACE IN WORLD

(By the Associated Press.)

By proclamation, President Coolidge directed yesterday that the flag should be displayed on all government buildings on Armistice day, November 11, and called upon the people to observe the day with "thanksgiving and prayer, and exercises designed to perpetuate peace through good will and mutual understanding between nations."

The proclamation read:

"Whereas, the 11th of November, 1918, marked the cessation of the most destructive, sanguinary and far-reaching war in human annals; and

"Whereas, it is fitting that the recurring anniversary of this date should be commemorated with thanksgiving and prayer and exercises designed to perpetuate peace through good will and mutual understanding between nations; and

"Whereas, by a concurrent resolution, passed by the Senate on June 4, 1926, the President was requested to issue a proclamation calling upon the officials to display the flag of the United States on all government buildings on November 11, and inviting the people of the United States to observe the day in schools and churches or other places, with appropriate ceremonies expressive of our gratitude for peace and our desire for the continuance of friendly relations with all other peoples:

"Now, therefore, I, Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States of America, in pursuance of the said concurrent resolution, do hereby order that the flag of the United States be displayed on all government buildings on November 11, 1926, and do invite the people of the United States to observe the day in schools and churches or other suitable places, with appropriate ceremonies, expressive of our gratitude for peace and our desire for the continuance of friendly relations with all other peoples.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused to be affixed the great seal of the United States.

"At the City of Washington, this 4th day of November, 1926, the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six, and of the independence of the United States, the one hundred and fifty-first."

KEATING IS HONORED
AS HE LEAVES ARMY

Headquarters Company Fetes
Veteran Sergeant; Leaves to Live in California.

Headquarters company, District of Washington, United States army, known as "guard of honor company" of the District, tendered Sergt. John A. Keating, its first sergeant, one of the best known soldiers in the city, a dinner at its barracks last night, on the occasion of his retirement from the army yesterday.

Sergt. Keating, who was sergeant-at-arms at the trial of Col. William Mitchell, although 63 years old, still was able to qualify as an expert marksman with rifle and pistol. Last time he was on the range, this veteran of the Spanish, Philippine, Boxer and world wars entered service with the Third Infantry in 1898, and resigned from the local army unit. He also saw service with the Mexican punitive expedition and in Alaska, and in the world war was cited for gallantry in action by Brig. Gen. Banford, during the Meuse-Argonne engagement.

Sergt. Keating, whose service record was marked "excellent" at the close of each enlistment, departed for San Francisco following the dinner, and will make his home there.

CAPITAL SOCIETY EVENTS

Amory, whose daughter, Miss Katherine Amory, will make her debut.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Williamson will entertain at a dinner-dance on Saturday, November 13, at the Wardman Park hotel in honor of Miss Adelaide Douglas, debutante daughter of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and Mrs. David Hunt Blair, and Miss Rebecca Lipscomb, debutante daughter of Mrs. Blaine Lipscomb. There will be about 20 guests, debutantes of this season and their escorts.

Mrs. E. H. G. Slater has returned to Washington and opened her house in Eighteenth street for the winter.

Mrs. R. Winston Holt will entertain at luncheon in compliment to Miss Frances Larner Gore, debutante daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Albert J. Gore, Wednesday, December 15, at the Washington club. Miss Gore has canceled all social engagements this week, owing to illness. She will have as her guest for the Thanksgiving holidays Miss Betty Benjamin, daughter of Mr. Frederick Benjamin, of Montclair, N. J., for whom she is planning several entertainments.

Mrs. Stewart Returns.

Mrs. Mary Stewart has returned to Washington, having passed the year in California, and will be at the Mayflower for about ten days, or until her house at 2200 Massachusetts avenue is ready for occupancy.

Mr. and Mrs. George de la Barra, of the Bolivian legation, entertained informally at luncheon yesterday at the Fine Willard.

Miss Katherine Judd entertained informally at dinner at the Carlton hotel last evening.

Mrs. Boyd Taylor announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mary Virginia Taylor, to Mr. Thomas Minor Pelly, son of the British consul at Seattle, Wash., and Mrs. Bernard Berenger Pelly. The marriage will take place in the early spring of this city.

Col. Charles W. Castle, U. S. A., retired, and Mrs. Castle have returned to Evanston, Ill., after a week's visit with relatives in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey G. Parker were receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, Chauncey G. Parker 3d, October 28.

Miss Harriet Hanger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Wallace W. Hanger, tonight for the first time, will attend the Harvard-Princeton game. Miss Hanger will visit Mr. and Mrs. George W. Tupper, of Brookline, Mass.

Smith-Beall Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Lillian Beatrice Beall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Howard, of 3501 Newton street, Mount Rainier, Md., to Mr. Melvin Harold Smith, son of Mrs. Carrie Brown, of Winchester, Va., took place in the Mount Rainier Methodist church last evening. The church was decorated with tall vases of chrysanthemums and autumn leaves and palms, and cathedral candles were on the altar. White satin bows and chrysanthemums marked the pews.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of bride's satin, with a close-fitting bodice and bouffant skirt covered with tulle and duchess lace embroidered with rhinestones. Her tulle veil was embroidered in silver, and held by a head dress of orange blossoms. A train of white satin hung from her shoulders and she wore white satin slippers with rhinestone buckles. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The matron of honor was Mrs. Ada M. Beall, sister-in-law of the bride. Her gown was of salmon satin, made similar to the gown of the bride, the skirt veiled with tulle and rosebuds. Her hat was of the same material and in the same shade, and she wore silver slippers. She carried butterfly roses, tied with a blue ribbon. The bridesmaids were Miss Leona Rider, Miss Delphia Mose-dale, Miss Evelyn Scott and Miss Lillian Ganbin. Their dresses were like that of the matron of honor, in shades of pink, yellow, green and sunset. They wore hats to match their dresses, and silver slippers, and carried pink Queen Beatrice roses, tied with pink ribbon. Miss Lenore Carrick, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, and was dressed in blue crepe. Kenneth Beall, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. He was dressed in black velvet and carried the rings on a white lily.

Mr. John W. Smith, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Maurice Beall, Mr. Joseph Prinz, Mr. Leon Watson and Mr. Al Zanner. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride for the relative of the bride and bridegroom. The house was decorated with ferns, chrysanthemums and oak leaves.

Mrs. Beall, mother of the bride, wore a dress of rose crepe trimmed with cut steel beads, with hat and slippers of black satin. She wore a bouquet of yellow tea roses. Mr. Brown, mother of the groom, was dressed in tan crepe, trimmed in pink, with hat and slippers of black velvet and wore a bouquet of pink tea roses.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Smith departed for a wedding trip through Florida, the latter wearing a tan crepe dress and a tan and brown velvet hat, brown slippers and a tan coat trimmed with brown fur. They will make their home at 3501 Newton street, Mount Rainier, Md. Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. Ada Beall, of New York; Mrs. C. G. W. of Ohio; Mrs. Carrie Brown, of Winchester, Va.; and Mr. Hobbs, of Hagerstown, Md.

Mrs. Willard A. Holbrook, president of the Society of the Dames of the Old Legion, will entertain the society at her residence, 1870 Wyoming avenue, this afternoon.

Mrs. Harry Sanderson Morris entertained at luncheon at the Wardman Park hotel yesterday, when she had 45 guests.

Col. W. J. Donovan was host at an informal luncheon party at the Carlton hotel yesterday, when she had five guests.

Mrs. Thompson to Entertain.

Mrs. Ross Thompson will be at home Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock at her home in Thirty-first street in compliment to Miss Doris Wagner, whose marriage to Mr. Ross Thompson, son of Mrs. Thompson, will take place the latter part of the month.

part today for her home in Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury have started for Chicago. From there they will go to Palm Beach for a short stay before returning to Philadelphia.

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. L. W. Perkins are at the Waldorf on their way to June, Alaska.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. Carley returned on the Roma, after passing several months in Europe and are at the Weylin. They will pass the winter at Belleair, Fla.

Mrs. Thomas Baring, who came from London to be present at the marriage of her son, Mr. Edward Baring, and Miss Virginia M. Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Barry Ryan, is a passenger on the Berengaria, sailing today.

Plans for Evangelism Drive Here Made at First Baptist Church Meeting.

A plea for a more dynamic Christianity was voiced yesterday by the Rev. Dr. W. H. Geistweil, of Dayton, Ohio, at a conference of ministers and laymen in the First Baptist church, Sixteenth and O streets northwest. The conference was called to make plans for a campaign of evangelism here from February 20 to March 6.

The Rev. W. H. Main, of the American Baptist Publication society, called on those at the conference to "evangelize, energize, fraternize and spiritualize." The Rev. Dr. G. G. Johnson led the devotional hour. Mrs. O. E. Howe presided.

Dean William Allen Wilbur of George Washington university presided at the session last evening. The song service was led by Percy S. Foster and the Rev. J. W. Many led the devotional hour.

NEXT WEEK'S ATTRACTIONS AT PLAYHOUSES

BELASCO.

Hugh Stanislaus Stange's new drama, "Glamour," will be seen at the Belasco theater all of the coming week, commencing with Monday night. The production is managerially sponsored by Albert Lewis in association with A. H. Woods.

Among the younger theatrical producers of America, Albert Lewis is regarded as one of the foremost dramatic play sponsors of our theater. His previous production of the current season, "The Donovan Affair," is a Broadway hit. Last year he brought out two New York successes, "The Jazz Singer" and "Easy Come, Easy Go." Mr. Lewis has also been associated with Sam H. Harris in several of that manager's most important productions, including "Rain," "Secrets," "Welcome of Strangers," "The Wilder Love," "The Nervous Wreck" and "The Family Upstairs."

Ralph Morison is the featured member of the cast that is appearing in Mr. Stange's play. Other artists of prominence impersonating characters in "Glamour" are Almina Gonnell, Irene Blom, Marie Rhoton, W. Craig, Roger Pryor, Messenger Mills and Kent Thurber. The play has been staged by Lewis in London.

The new policy of premier prices for the Belasco goes into effect with Monday night's performance of this play. It will remain in repertory for other newly produced plays that come here, providing there is a proper demand. It will remain in the repertory of these twenty years ago prices shown by theatergoers next week.

STRAUD.

"La Boheme," King Vidor production, will be the feature film attraction at the Straud theater commencing Sunday afternoon. Lillian Hish, John Gilbert, Irene Adoree, George Hessel and in the cast, "La Boheme" is the love story of the immortal romance of Mimi, the little seamstress of Paris, and Rodolphe, her prince charming. It is a screen play you will never forget.

On the stage will be presented five acts of Loew's vaudeville with Hal Willis and Hazel MacFarlane headlining in a revue entitled "Dancing Pirates." Other numbers will be Al H. Wilson, comedian, in "A Conglomeration of Nonsensicalities and Witicism," Maura Neilson and Joe Warshawsky, "Who's to Blame?" Robert Coleman and Marjorie Darrettson appearing in "Classical Synopses," and Achilles and Newman, two gladiators in a comedy novelty, "Old Greek Pastimes."

Short film features and orchestral numbers under the direction of Arthur J. Maxwell will complete the program.

AMBASSADOR.

Mary Astor, Lloyd Hughes, pictured as costars of First National's production of Owen Davis' stage success, "Forever After," and supported by Hallam Cooley, David Terrence, Alec B. Francis, Eulalie Jensen and others of note, will be seen for the first time in Washington in this thoroughly entertaining subject at Crandall's Ambassador theater the first three days of next week, beginning Sunday afternoon at 3. Abbreviated camera subjects will complete the bill.

On Wednesday and Thursday the Ambassador will present "The Count of Luxembourg," in which the stellar role is played by George Walsh and which will be supplemented by the Black Sennett comedy, "A Sea Dog's Tale."

On Friday Johnny Hines will be the Ambassador's pictured star in First National's production of "The Brown Derby." Friday also will witness the inauguration of a new chapter series, "The Collegians."

On Saturday Bebe Daniels will occupy the Ambassador's screen in the title role of "The Campus Flirt."

Seventy-two Birthday Cakes.

Instead of a birthday cake with 72 candles, Lieut. Comdr. John Philip Sousa will have 72 birthday cakes—one for each year when he celebrates his birthday in Milwaukee on Saturday, November 6. The birthday cakes are to be presented to him by various Milwaukee organizations during his evening concert at the auditorium by fraternal, civic and patriotic organizations.

At the Chicago auditorium on Sunday night, Sousa will be presented with a solid baton by Max Garder in behalf of the musicians of Chicago. The famous bandmaster is now approaching the end of his thirty-fourth annual tour, which began on July 4 at Hershey, Pa. He will give two programs here in the auditorium November 19. When he has laid away his baton for the season, he will go to South Carolina to shoot ducks.

NATIONAL.

"No, No, Nanette," the musical comedy of fond memory that delighted enormous audiences at the National through two engagements last season, will return to that theater on Sunday night with Louise Groody and Hal Sicily in the star parts. The humor, the sparkling lyrics and the hitting melodies of this record-breaking attraction are remarkably exhilarating. It is charmingly wholesome and agreeable with "I Want to Be Happy," its theme song. The cast includes Frank Althoff, Evelyn Darville, Dorothy Waterman, Alan Allenworth, Eva Mae Francis, Edna Whitaker, Gladys Yates and Beatrice Lee.

KEITH'S.

H. F. Keith's theater announces as the headline attraction for the week of November 7, Jack Smith, "The Whispering Bystander," who makes his first American appearance since his sensational European triumph. He will be heard in selections from his popular successes.

Harry Love steps forward as vaudeville's newest producer, presenting the big feature of the week, "The Country Beyond," in which the stellar roles are played by Olive Horton, Ralph Graves, Gertrude Astor and J. Farrell Macdonald. The comedy will be "The Galloping Ghost."

EARLE.

The Earle theater next week will present its top line attraction the Elva-Klinger revue, a composite of songs, melody and dances participated in by ten gifted feminine artists and two male. The extra added attraction will be supplied by Al Moore and his Jolly Tars, a symmetrical orchestra of eleven playing musicians, led by Mr. Moore. Another distinctly unusual offering will be that contributed to the bill by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Phillips and Master Norman Phillips, Jr. In this act the unusual talents of a precocious youngster are made much of. Other inclusions in the vaudeville portion of the entertainment will be Harry Stanley and Dorothy Quinet in a comedy "Books," and an act still to be announced.

The photoplay attraction for the week beginning next Sunday at 3 will be the William Fox pictureization of James Oliver Curwood's story, "The Country Beyond," in which the stellar roles are played by Olive Horton, Ralph Graves, Gertrude Astor and J. Farrell Macdonald. The comedy will be "The Galloping Ghost."

GAYETY.

"Aloma of the South Seas," presented by James Thatcher, formerly manager of Polk's theater here, will be next week's attraction at the Gayety theater. Mr. Thatcher brings the original New York company of the play to the Gayety theater for a week's engagement, beginning with Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The supplementary comedy will be Mack Sennett's "The Cold Coed," in addition to which a new Pathe Review will be shown.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, Colleen Moore will be seen at the Central in the stellar role of "It Must Be Love." This comedy drama will be supplemented by a short reel comedy bearing the title of "Who's My Wife," in which Lige Conley is the star.

On Thursday and Friday the Central will screen one of the most notable productions of the year in the William Fox release of "Three Bad Men." A new Aesop Fable, which will constitute the auxiliary attraction.

On Saturday of next week, the Central will present Laura La Plante in the stellar role of "Her Big Night," which will be supplemented by the Cameo comedy "Kiss Me Kate."

Rain or shine service on the telephone for Classified Ads—just call Main 4295.

COLUMBIA.

Richard Dix, the dashing and popular Paramount screen star, will bring to the screen one of the greatest football stories ever filmed in "The Quarterback," Fred Newmeyer's timely and thrilling Paramount production featuring Esther Ralston and a notable group of players, which is announced for presentation at Loew's Columbia theater immediately following the current engagement at that playhouse of John Gilbert and an all-star cast in "Bardolay, the Magnificent," King Vidor's production of the novel by Rafael Sabatini.

A brilliant group of added attractions, including Aesop's Fable, Topics of the Day, Pathe newsreel pictures and overture, supplement the featured screen offering at the Columbia this week.

CENTRAL.

"The Millionaire Policeman," another excellent vehicle for the robust talents of Herbert Rawlinson, will be the major attraction at Crandall's Central theater the first two days of next week beginning Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The supplementary comedy will be Mack Sennett's "The Cold Coed," in addition to which a new Pathe Review will be shown.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, Colleen Moore will be seen at the Central in the stellar role of "It Must Be Love." This comedy drama will be supplemented by a short reel comedy bearing the title of "Who's My Wife," in which Lige Conley is the star.

On Thursday and Friday the Central will screen one of the most notable productions of the year in the William Fox release of "Three Bad Men." A new Aesop Fable, which will constitute the auxiliary attraction.

On Saturday of next week, the Central will present Laura La Plante in the stellar role of "Her Big Night," which will be supplemented by the Cameo comedy "Kiss Me Kate."

METROPOLITAN.

"Ukulele Ike," one of the most popular singing comedians and ukulele strummers contributing to phonograph records, radio and the stage, is announced as the special attraction at Crandall's Metropolitan theater for the week beginning next Sunday at 3 o'clock in "Le Afternoon." "Ukulele Ike," whose other name is Cliff McKee, needs no introduction to the national capital, having previously established himself as one of the most popular entertainers known to the capital amusement lovers.

The supplementary offering, as usual, will embrace a new issue of the Metropolitan World survey and added short reel subjects of varied interest and uniform merit. The orchestral contributions by the Metropolitan Symphony under the conductorship of Daniel Breckin, and on week days by the Metropolitan Ambassadors, led by Milton Davis, will constitute important additions to the bill.

MUTUAL.

Lou Reed will present Charles (Tramp) McNally in "Nite Life of Paris" all next week at the Mutual theater on Pennsylvania avenue near Ninth.

Charles (Tramp) McNally is well known here with others in the cast, which includes Harry Left, Al Baker, and Billy Pitzer.

Dolly Dale Morrissey and Gladys Lockwood are the featured entertainers of the feminine contingent.

Manager Jarboe of the Mutual will inaugurate amateur night the coming Thursday which will be the wrestling scheduled for each Friday night given Mutual patrons two added features during the week.

PALACE.

A novel and fascinating de luxe presentation program is announced for the week starting next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. W. C. Fields, former comedian of the Ziegfeld "Follies" and now a headliner on the silver-sheet, will offer his latest Paramount screen laugh-maker, "So's Your Old Man," as the principal photoplay attraction, while the outstanding stage offering of the bill will be the Plymouth, Vt. Old Time Dance Orchestra, with "Uncle" John Wilder, President Coolidge's uncle, and a group of the President's boyhood friends in old-time songs and dances.

"So's Your Old Man," W. C. Fields Paramount comedy hit, is a picture of the President's boyhood friends in old-time songs and dances. "So's Your Old Man," W. C. Fields Paramount comedy hit, is a picture of the President's boyhood friends in old-time songs and dances. "So's Your Old Man," W. C. At President Performance.

Miss Beth Merrill, featured in William Mack's new play, "Lily Sue," at the Belasco this week, will be the guests of Manager "Jack" Harris, at the President theater this afternoon to watch the matinee performance of "Ladies of the Evening." Two seasons ago Mr. Belasco first brought this play to Washington, showing it in premiere at the National theater. Miss Beth Merrill then originated the role of Kay Bealy now being played by Leona Powers.

No servant is more saving than electricity. Without repeated instructions, "show-me-how" requests, or complaints—you can put your electrical servants to work in your home, when and where you wish! Instead of periodical salary increases usually demanded by domestics, the "salary" of this most saving of servants is constantly DECREASING!

The wages your electrical servants receive is surprisingly low. Less than 25c a month is the cost of current consumed by the average electrical washing machine for keeping clean the clothes and linen of the average family. An electric Vacuum Cleaner can thoroughly clean the average Washington home—and keep it clean—at a cost of less than $2.00 FOR A WHOLE YEAR! Other artists of prominence impersonating characters in "Glamour" are Minna Gombell, Irene Hunter, Edna Lillian, W. Craig, Roger Pryor, Messenger Hells and Kent Thurber. The play has been staged by Mr. Lewis.

The new policy of prewar prices for absorbing dramatic attractions coming to the Belasco goes into effect with Monday night's performance of this play. It will remain in vogue for other newly produced plays that come here, providing there is a proper degree of appreciation for the return of these twenty years ago prices shown by theatergoers next week.

STRAND.

"La Bohème," Ralph Vidor production, will be the feature film attraction at the Strand theater commencing Sunday afternoon. The picture, which is the story of the life of the famous French composer, Charles Debussy, is a masterpiece of art and drama. It is a story of love, of the struggle for existence, of the triumph of art over adversity. It is a story that will appeal to the hearts of all who love the art of the cinema.

On the stage, presented five acts of Loew's vaudeville with Hal Willis and Hazel MacFarlane headlining in a revue entitled "Ladies of the Evening." Other numbers will be "The Girl in the Red Velvet," "The Nervous Wreck" and "The Family Upstairs." The production is managerially sponsored by Albert Lewis in association with A. H. Woods.

It is a picture of color with Lois Syrell and Peggy O'Neil supported by a big company of singers and dancers. The picture is a story of love and youth and the action of the play occurs on an island belonging to the British South Sea group. There will be native music and a group of native dancing girls. The tropical hurricane, which takes place is claimed to be the most sensational and most realistic ever presented on any stage.

On Thursday and Friday the Keith's will screen one of the most notable productions of the year in the William Fox release of "Three Bad Men." A new Asop Fable will constitute the auxiliary attraction.

On Saturday next week, the Keith's will present the picture "The Girl in the Red Velvet," in which the stellar role is played by George Walsh and which will be supplemented by the Mack Sennett comedy, "A Sea Dog's Tale."

RIALTO.

"Perch of the Devil," based on Gertrude Atherton's widely read novel of the same name, starring Mae Busch and Pat O'Malley, is the feature picture at the Rialto for the week beginning Sunday.

"Perch of the Devil"—poets call it perversion. Husbands call it restlessness. It's the little red imp that perches on a woman's shoulder and tells her she's dissatisfied, and that life is a bore.

Gertrude Atherton's story brought to the screen is that of a pleasure-loving wife who realizes her mistake too late and turns into a tiger-woman to keep her husband's love. In brief, it concerns Ida Hook, a modern, slangy little thing who goes to the man of her choice, Yearning for luxuries beyond her husband's means, she gladly accepts the opportunity to go abroad with the wealthy "Blake," a spendthrift woman friend, a Judas in silk and satins who helped the unsophisticated little wife that she much loved her husband. In Europe she learns that her husband has "struck it rich" and is overjoyed for she really loves him. The husband wants her, but honestly believes that money alone has saved his wife's love for him, and he casts her off. The climax is furnished with the two women, with the veneer of civilization ripped off by a great passion, meet in a primal battle.

TIVOLI.

The special attraction at Crandall's Tivoli theater next week will be provided by Art Landry and his Victor Recording orchestra of twelve skilled instrumentalists. Mr. Landry and his band, who recently scored a distinct triumph at Crandall's Metropolitan theater, will be heard throughout the seven-day period beginning next Sunday afternoon at 3.

The photo play attraction for the first two days of next week at the Tivoli will be "The Brown Derby." First National's latest release as a stellar vehicle for the genial talent of Johnny Hines.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, Lewis A. Stone will occupy the Tivoli screen in First National's production of "Don Juan's Three Nights," which depicts the love adventures of a distinguished pianist. The supplementary offering will include a new Asop Fable.

For Thursday and Friday week the screen will reflect the image of Bebe Daniels, frolicking through Paramount's production of "The Campus Flirt," in which she is supported by an admirable cast.

On Saturday Janet Gaynor will be the pictured star at the Tivoli in "The Midnight Kiss," which will be supplemented by Charlie Chase in "Long Live the King."

EARLE.

The Earle theater next week will present its top line attraction the Elva-Klinger revue, a composite of songs, melody and dances participated in by ten gifted feminine artists and two males. The extra added attraction will be supplied by Al Moore and his Jolly Tars—a symphonic orchestra of eleven playing musicians, led by Mr. Moore. Another distinctly unusual offering will be that contributed to the bill by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Phillips and Master Norman Phillips, Jr. In this act the unusual talents of a precocious youngster are made much of. Other inclusions in the vaudeville portion of the entertainment will be Harry Stanley and Dorothy Quinet in a comedy "Books," and an act still to be announced.

The photoplay attraction for the week beginning next Sunday at 3 will be the William Fox production of "The Millionaire Policeman," another excellent vehicle for the robust talents of Herbert Rawlinson, who will be the major attraction at Crandall's Central theater the first two days of next week beginning Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The supplementary comedy will be Mack Sennett's "Ice Cold Cocaine" in addition to which a new Pathe Review will be shown.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, Colleen Moore will be seen at the Central in the stellar role of "It Must Be Love." This comedy drama will be supplemented by a short reel featuring the title of "Who's My Wife," in which Lila Conley is the star.

On Thursday and Friday the Central will screen one of the most notable productions of the year in the William Fox release of "Three Bad Men." A new Asop Fable will constitute the auxiliary attraction.

On Saturday next week, the Central will present the picture "The Girl in the Red Velvet," in which the stellar role is played by George Walsh and which will be supplemented by the Mack Sennett comedy, "A Sea Dog's Tale."

COLUMBIA.

Richard Dix, the dashing and popular Paramount screen star, will bring to the screen one of the greatest thrillers ever filmed in "The Quarterback," Fred Newmeyer's timely and thrilling Paramount production featuring Esther Ralston and a notable group of players, which is announced for presentation at Loew's Columbia theater immediately following the current engagement at that playhouse of John Gilbert and in all-star cast in "Bardelys, the Magnificent." King Vidor's production of the novel by Rafael Sabatini, "The Sign of the Cross," will be the feature picture at the Columbia this week.

CENTRAL.

"The Millionaire Policeman," another excellent vehicle for the robust talents of Herbert Rawlinson, who will be the major attraction at Crandall's Central theater the first two days of next week beginning Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The supplementary comedy will be Mack Sennett's "Ice Cold Cocaine" in addition to which a new Pathe Review will be shown.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, Colleen Moore will be seen at the Central in the stellar role of "It Must Be Love." This comedy drama will be supplemented by a short reel featuring the title of "Who's My Wife," in which Lila Conley is the star.

On Thursday and Friday the Central will screen one of the most notable productions of the year in the William Fox release of "Three Bad Men." A new Asop Fable will constitute the auxiliary attraction.

On Saturday next week, the Central will present the picture "The Girl in the Red Velvet," in which the stellar role is played by George Walsh and which will be supplemented by the Mack Sennett comedy, "A Sea Dog's Tale."

METROPOLITAN.

"Ukulele Ike," one of the most popular singing comedians and ukulele strummers contributing to phonograph records, radio and the stage, is announced as the special attraction at Crandall's Metropolitan theater for the week beginning next Sunday at 3 o'clock in "The Afternoon." "Ukulele Ike," whose other name is Char E. Wards, needs no introduction to the National capital, having been well established himself as one of the most popular entertainers known to the Capital amusement lovers. The companion screen attraction will be First National's production of Owen Davis' stage hit, "Forever After," in which the stellar roles are played by Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes, supported by Hallam Cooley, David Torrence, Eulalie Jensen and Alec B. Francis.

The supplementary offering, as usual, will embrace a new issue of the Metropolitan World survey and added short reel subjects of varied interest and uniform merit. The orchestral contributions by the Metropolitan Symphony under the conductorship of Daniel Breckin, and on week days by the Metropolitan Samblers, led by Milton Davis, will constitute important additions to the bill.

MUTUAL.

Lou Reels will present Charles (Tramp) McNally in "Nite Life of Paris" all next week at the Mutual theater on Pennsylvania avenue near Ninth.

Charles (Tramp) McNally is well known here with others in the cast, which includes Harry Left, Al Baker, and Billy Pitzer.

Dolly Dale Morrissey and Gladys Lockwood are the featured entertainers of the feminine contingent. Manager Jarboe of the Mutual will inaugurate amateur night the coming Thursday with the wrestling scheduled for each Friday night gives Mutual patrons two added features during the week.

PALACE.

A novel and fascinating deluxe presentation program is announced for the Palace for the week beginning next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The program will feature a new issue of the Palace World survey and added short reel subjects of varied interest and uniform merit. The orchestral contributions by the Palace Symphony under the conductorship of Daniel Breckin, and on week days by the Palace Samblers, led by Milton Davis, will constitute important additions to the bill.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, Colleen Moore will be seen at the Palace in the stellar role of "It Must Be Love." This comedy drama will be supplemented by a short reel featuring the title of "Who's My Wife," in which Lila Conley is the star.

On Thursday and Friday the Palace will screen one of the most notable productions of the year in the William Fox release of "Three Bad Men." A new Asop Fable will constitute the auxiliary attraction.

On Saturday next week, the Palace will present the picture "The Girl in the Red Velvet," in which the stellar role is played by George Walsh and which will be supplemented by the Mack Sennett comedy, "A Sea Dog's Tale."

On Sunday, the Palace will present the picture "The Girl in the Red Velvet," in which the stellar role is played by George Walsh and which will be supplemented by the Mack Sennett comedy, "A Sea Dog's Tale."

This Servant SAVES!

No servant is more saving than electricity. Without repeated instructions, "show-me-how" requests, or complaints—you can put your electrical servants to work in your home, when and where you wish! Instead of periodical salary increases usually demanded by domestics, the "salary" of this most saving of servants is constantly DECREASING!

The wages your electrical servants receive is surprisingly low. Less than 25c a month is the cost of current consumed by the average electrical washing machine for keeping clean the clothes and linen of the average family. An electric Vacuum Cleaner can thoroughly clean the average Washington home—and keep it clean—at a cost of less than $2.00 FOR A WHOLE YEAR! ONE CENT will make over a third-of-a-million stitches with an Electric Sewing Machine!

Supply the appliances and convenience outlets to employ all these servants for the housework in your own home. The continued low (or lower) cost of maintaining your electrical servants is the objective of —for there is a difference!

A MAN can buy a suit of clothes for $18—or he can buy one for $75 or more.

*You wouldn't expect to get the same quality of fabrics—the same length of wear—the same service and satisfaction from the cheap suit that you get from the good one. And you wouldn't get it!

Gasoline is just the same. There may be some "gases" which sell for a lower price than AMERICAN GAS. But they are not cheaper! You shouldn't expect them to be. You shouldn't expect to get the same uniform quality—nor the same mileage—nor the same service and satisfaction. And you won't get it!

There is a difference in gasolines—a real difference! The success of AMERICAN GAS and its increasing popularity with Washington motorists has proved that. Dollar for dollar—cent for cent—this ORANGE Colored Gas gives you more mileage, better service, more complete satisfaction.

Cost price is only half the story. Cost per mile is the important thing to you. Buy Gas on that basis—and you'll buy AMERICAN GAS!

The Housekeeper

WE are again behind in our request for recipes for the reason that we have let them rest here in the file for a number of days to work with other things. We wish also to add some of the tea menus that came to us in the contest, and shall do so in the near future. For today we shall have a menu that is in some ways rather aside from the usual. The recipes happen to be old ones that are, in my opinion, above the average and for some reason or other the menu as a whole seems to have rather extensive possibilities. If your guest is not too fastidious, L. V., you might try this menu rather than the more elaborate one that we are sending you through the mail. Elaborate dinners are not always the most gratifying ones that can be imagined. It seems to me that at times a too elaborate dinner for an informal guest is as bad as an overdone woman at a simple social affair. This applies to you, I do not hesitate to recommend its use on Saturday. And I am wondering whether or not we are twins, as it is about time for me to have another birthday and I am afraid it is due on Saturday.

First and foremost I want to pass on to you two suggestions that came to help us from Mrs. Rehlander. Thank you for them.

1. Flowers will keep fresh for a long time if a little sugar has been put in the water and the water will not have to be changed.

2. The water rice has been cooked in, will thicken gravy and stews. A little coffee will color it and give it a nice flavor.

Some months ago we received a recipe for a "different stuffed pepper." This recipe seems attractive and we wish to pass it along. The sender had submitted it for our consideration and we had feared that it might be expected to involve a recompense of some sort. We have communicated with the sender and had no answer so we are going to make use of the recipe for the pleasure of our friends and trust that it is what the sender intended.

A Different Stuffed Pepper.

In boiling water with a pinch of salt boil four large peppers for five minutes or until tender but not soft. Boil about seven medium sized potatoes, drain well and mash, season with salt, pepper, butter and milk or cream; heating the cream or milk thoroughly into the potatoes until they are light and quite soft. Stuff the peppers with the potatoes, piling the potatoes high. Put a lump of butter in the center, sprinkle lightly with grated cheese and if desired lay a strip of tomato across the top. Place in baking dish and bake until the potatoes are a golden brown.

Squab With Carrot Sauce.

(Mrs. J. R. G.)

Prepare the squabs in the usual manner (saute or broil, or even roast) and place them on the hot platter that is to be used for serving them. Surround them with the following sauce and garnish with sprigs of parsley and tiny pieces of pimento.

Carrot Sauce.

1 1/2 cups of cooked mashed carrots.
1/2 teaspoonful Worcestershire sauce.
2 cups of thick white sauce.
Add to the white sauce any liquid that may have been in the pan after the squabs were cooked. This liquid will be largely butter and meat juice and will give the sauce a bit of color and a decided flavor. Add the carrots and the half teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and salt and pepper to taste. (This may not be the recipe that you have in mind, Mrs. G., but it is the only one that we have so far been able to locate. I hope it is satisfactory.)

Cream of Mushroom Soup.

(Mrs. W.)

Chop a half pound of mushrooms that have been peeled (the stems are excellent for this purpose). Add them to four cups of white stock (which can be made with two chicken bouillon cubes) and one small onion, and cook for 25 minutes. Rub the whole through a sieve. Reheat and add a fourth cup of flour and a fourth cup of butter that has been blended to a smooth paste. Add a fourth cup of milk and a fourth cup of cream, and salt, pepper and lemon juice to taste. It is possible to use water in place of the stock, but if the latter is to be had it is far preferable.

In the menu that took the second prize in our recent contest there was an error in the recipe for orange rolls. We wish to correct the error at this time.

Sauce for Orange Rolls.

2 tablespoonfuls powdered sugar.
1 1/2 tablespoonfuls orange juice.
1 1/2 tablespoonfuls butter.
Mix and spread over the top of the rolls and finish baking. Watch carefully as the sauce burns very easily.

May I thank the reader who so kindly brought me a sample of her preserving. I shall take it to my home and revel in it, for we are too much occupied here at the studio with the affairs of the day to take a great deal of leisure to practice what we preach. I am sorry that I was not at the studio when you came, but we shall hope to see you in the very near future. And thank you very, very much for your kindness Mrs. C.

And now for a menu:

Thursday
Okra Soup
Toasted Crackers
Celery
Brains Saute or Salmon Croquettes
Cabbage Delicieux
String Beans
Muffins
Old-Fashioned "Delicate" Cake
Tea or Coffee

Readers of the column will recall that cabbage delicieux is the delicious thing that is produced by chopping cabbage very fine and dropping it slowly into a boiling salted water that has a little soda in it and cooking it closely covered for only five to eight minutes. Strange as it may seem there is no odor from this cabbage cooking and the result is even more delicate a vegetable than our old familiar green pea.

Okra Soup.

Wash and slice about one-half of a pound of okra. Peel and cut in pieces four or five good-sized tomatoes or use a can of tomatoes. If the fresh ones are used add more water than if the canned ones are used, either way add a teaspoonful of salt. (It will require at least two cups of water for the fresh but probably one only for the canned.) Cook about an hour and add a handful of well-shredded rice. When rice is done, add two cups of soup stock and heat thoroughly. Serve at once with a slice of lemon in each soup plate or cup.

Brains Saute.

Soak either one or two pairs of brains in cold water for an hour or so and then remove all the skin that is possible to remove and boil brains until tender. Break in small pieces, salt and roll in egg and cracker crumbs and saute in butter (or crisco) until well browned. Serve with slices of lemon. Garnish with parsley, and be sure the platter is hot. A delicious dish.

Muffins.

Two eggs, one pint of flour, one teaspoonful of milk or cream, butter size of half an egg, a little salt and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix the baking powder and salt in the flour and then beat the eggs. Add the yolks first then add the butter melted and then the flour. Last of all the whites of the eggs and bake immediately in a hot oven in gem pans. Serve at once.

Old-Fashioned "Delicate" Cake.

Cream together one cupful of butter with two cups of sugar and then slowly add one cup of sweet milk and the whites of eight eggs beaten to a froth. Finally mix in with as little stirring as possible three cups of sifted flour into which has been stirred three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Since nothing accompanies this cake it will not prove overly expensive in spite of the eggs. For cream, for instance, would be far more disastrous to the depth of the purse.

Salmon Croquettes.

One can of salmon, one well beaten egg, half a cup of fine bread crumbs, one tablespoonful of butter, salt to taste, a sprinkling of cayenne pepper, a little nutmeg, the juice of half a lemon or a little vinegar. Drain off the liquor and mince the salmon. Melt and work in the butter, season to taste, moisten with the liquor and vinegar before the crumbs go in, put in the egg, flour your hands and make the paste into little rolls. Set them in a cool place for an hour then fry them in hot lard. Serve on a hot platter garnished with parsley and surrounded with tomato or carrot sauce.

Nancy Goes A-Shopping

For information regarding the shops at which articles described in this column may be found, call Nancy Carey, The Washington Post, Main 4235, Branch 30.

We were rather frivolous this last trip, all because we saw some very dainty bracelets the very first thing and were so lost in them that we got very little farther. Jewelry, costume jewelry, is decidedly popular just at this time. If we have a jade green dress, Paris has stated that it is well to wear with it a bit of jade jewelry. The rhinestones may be a ring, pin, beads, bracelet or earrings. But some one of the number must be present if we are to be really the last word. So says Paris. However that may be, out of the fad has come some hardworking workmanship in the jewelry line, and the particular articles that caught the shopping eye today were bracelets. They are of sterling silver, daintily made and in excellent taste. The stones, raised oval ones, are of course of just the composition variety, but they are good imitations and of lovely color. The bracelets come either with alternate links of silver and stones or one stone right after the other. They are to be had in amethyst, topaz and jade, and the shades are lovely ones. For the young lady of the family who is fond of trinkets, these will make a delightful gift for the Christmas stockings, or, if we are to have a Jack Horner pie as a table decoration, this bracelet will do beautifully for one of the guests' presents. Or again, if our new gown needs just a bit of color, add a bracelet, they are worth it. They sell at $1.

2. A reader has asked where hats of large head-size may be found. We promised to look for these hats and discovered not just one or two, but a whole department devoted to medium and large head sizes. The hats range from the less expensive ones to the more elaborate and therefore the more expensive type, therefore a wide range of value is to be had and there is a delightful variation of types from which to select. We are glad to give information as to where these hats are to be had, upon request.

3. Costume bloomers are indeed a fall necessity. We have discovered a number of these articles of excellent quality silk that have the long snug fit that the mode demands. They are to be had in all colors, black and white, with the tans, pinks, etc. as well. They sell for $2.95, and there can be no question of their washing and wearing qualities.

Fit Tight at Ankles

(By the Associated Press.)
Gladys Cooper's new golden pajamas are the talk of Mayfair. They are fashioned of golden tissue with a curiously meshed surface. The long trousers fit closely to Miss Cooper's ankles while the jumper is held in by a deep, closely swathed hip sash, which is knotted in front.

Black and Red Worn

Most in Germany

(By the Associated Press.)
Black and red are the "fashionable" colors for this winter in Germany, textile firms report. Red mixed with a little blue is regarded as especially "nifty." Blue as ground color has almost gone out of existence.

SECOND LOVE

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY EUGENE McLEAN

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.
Harry Morton has hurried home from Europe when he learns that his daughter, Audrey, and her husband, John Parrish, have fallen out. Audrey is rich; Parrish has left home because too often. Morton finds that Marie Allen, whom Audrey has left in charge of her home during her own absence, has been making love to Parrish, who finally has become interested in her. Marie, young, lovely, is an advocate of utter freedom for women. She proceeds to "ramp" Morton upon his arrival, but Morton, a widower, has long been pursued by women, and laughs at her. As the last chapter ends Morton sends word that he is bringing Parrish to dinner at Audrey's home, that he wants Audrey to leave while Parrish is there, but desires Marie to remain.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.
(Name and situation in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XXIV.

MARCIE thought rapidly. The situation was not an easy one.
"You'll be hostess, won't you?" coaxed Audrey. "Daddy wants you to be."
"All right." The other girl gave a gesture of assent. "I'll put on my prettiest clothes, and make 'em happy."

Audrey turned back to the telephone, and told her father that she herself would go to a hotel for dinner.

"Now don't be mean to John," she said, hanging up the receiver. "He was mean to me, but you'll be nice to him, won't you?"

"I'll make him a household pet," Marcie promised, without the quiver of an eyelid.

When Morton and Parrish appeared, an hour later, she greeted them at the door.

"So glad to see you again," she said to Parrish, coolly, holding out her hand.

He stared at her. Then, noting Morton's quick glance of interest, he took her fingers in his, and promptly dropped them.

"Let's sit out here on the swing until dinner's ready," she invited. Morton, a smile lurking at the corner of his mouth, seated himself where she indicated. After a moment's delay, Parrish sat down, too. The girl took her seat, between them.

"Isn't this lovely?" she demanded, settling her skirts. "Two nice men, alone with me!"

"Oh," said Parrish, as if she had stung him.

The scratches she had administered to his face a few days before had almost disappeared. She looked him over with frank interest.

"Aren't you looking a little pale?" she asked.

"No," he replied briefly.

"I think you've been working too hard, maybe," she suggested.

He did not answer. Turning his head away, he edged as far from her as the limits of the swing permitted.

Morton, who had said nothing since his arrival, now entered the conversation.

"Miss Allen, you know, has been taking care of Audrey's house the last two weeks," he said, pleasantly.

"I know it," said Parrish. "We are hoping she can stay much longer." Morton went on.

Parrish scowled. "I never liked long visits, myself," he said.

Marcie leaned far forward, so she could see his eyes. "Do you mean I ought to go away?"

Parrish grunted. "It isn't my house," he replied.

Morton put his hand on Marcie's arm. "Unfortunately—I'm sorry to drag you into this, but you'll have to know—there has been a trifling disagreement between John and Audrey." He looked straight at her, with a warning in his level gaze.

"She knows all about it," growled Parrish.

"I couldn't help but guess a few things," she said, seeking in Morton's face for approval. He nodded.

"You didn't guess anything," Parrish stated. "You were here when it all happened, and heard it, and saw it. Besides, you talked—"

He stopped and colored. Morton was watching him out of the corner of his eye.

"Let's not make it uncomfortable for Miss Allen," the older man interposed. "This trouble isn't her fault, and she's trying to keep out of it."

"The dickens she is!" Parrish muttered under his breath.

"What?" inquired Morton. Parrish stirred uneasily. "Isaid I suppose she is."

Old habits of truthfulness came to the surface at this, and Parrish got up, with a bound.

"What I really said was: 'The dickens she is!'" he shouted. He stamped into the house, and slammed the door after him. Morton smiled at the girl.

"Am I lovely?" Marcie asked.

"Just what do you want me to say?" she asked. "How shall I act?"

"You did beautifully, my dear," Morton told her, patting her arm. "Act just as though nothing had happened," he repeated, significantly.

"I got you the first time," she said. "But please tell me what you are doing this for!"

Morton felt in his pockets and drew a cigarette case. "Have one?" he offered.

She shook her head. "That's right," he approved. "Don't smoke too many of them. They put a tiny edge on a girl's voice."

He lit his own, and considered a moment. "You ask me why I'm doing this. Well, I want her to be happy. This young man happens to be her husband, and it occurred to me I'd like to watch him in contact with a young and lovely—and ardent—lady."

"I take this opportunity of telling them that it may sometimes be civil, but it is not necessary."

Conduct and Common Sense

By ANNE SINGLETON

HOW DO YOU SHOW APPRECIATION OF AN INVITATION?

WELL, by answering it as soon as possible, so that your hostess may know whether you are coming or not. You can write, or you can telephone, if the invitation permits that informality—and most of them do today—but you must not leave your "yes" or "no" too long in doubt.

Any invitation that either formally or informally "requests the pleasure" requires an answer. Sometimes, however, an invitation will be of the reception type. "Mrs. Mantrap at home, on such and such a day, music." If Mrs. Mantrap is giving a general party and doesn't care to know exactly how many are coming, that's all there is to that. If she does want to know, she adds R. S. V. P. Then you have to answer, and you do it just as if she had written you a "request the pleasure" invitation.

Or Mrs. Samuel Glover accepts with pleasure. Mrs. Mantrap's kind invitation for Monday, January the fourth at ten o'clock.

Or Mrs. Samuel Glover regrets exceedingly that she can not accept Mrs. Mantrap's kind invitation for Monday, January fourth.

In regretting, you need not name the hour. It is only important when you wish to show you have registered it.

But there is another question in this question. In the world of society, people ask each other to different entertainments and there is no sense of obligation on either side. Even if a person who can not give any sort of party in return goes to many that person is only expected to pay a visit, to leave a card to show appreciation of the civility, and all that is required has been done. People who are not accustomed to the ways of the world, however, and who do not find entertaining easy—who, indeed, make a good deal of an effort when they give a party—sometimes fancy that candy, flowers, books, presents should be sent by guests to hosts after hospitality has been accepted. I take this opportunity of telling them that it may sometimes be civil, but it is not necessary.

Vanity Bracelets

For Evening Wear

(By the Associated Press.)

A new vanity bracelet for evening wear in place of the ordinary slave bangle has appeared in the drawing rooms of Mayfair. It is composed of four little flat, gold boxes, each about the size of a penny and attached to a Milanese gold chain. The boxes contain a supply of powder, rouge, and lipstick, the fourth containing a powder puff and mirror. The new mode does away with necessity for a Dorothy bag and can be easily slipped on and off.

Cases on Garters

Hold Powder Puffs

(By the Associated Press.)

Garters with cases for holding powder and puff, and others with clips for holding handkerchiefs, are among the latest fashions for English women.

Dad's Has an Absent-Minded Moment

Perhaps he'll like this one better. It's of black kashmir—soft finish, but it doesn't wrinkle—and the long stole collar is stenciled Baroudiki. (Yes, it's his kid, same as the other one.) Dad is figuring that the forty-fifth move he'll win the game.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES McDONALD

A Very Foolish Mother.

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am a boy, 19, not bad to look at; have never been out with a girl, have never been kissed; in short have no experience of any kind with the fair sex. From what I've read and studied, I was always made to believe that marriage and home was inevitable for almost every one. Speak of it around here and you are greeted with smiles.

I have two parents who are rather "hard-boiled." Anything that is considered romantic by me is laughed off by them as "junk." Why is it? I have never had a sweetheart. The mater has many words, she doesn't want me to have a sweetheart. They tell me that I am better off without one. If I go anywhere and meet any girls, then I can see mother's displeasure. If anything slips out during the dinner hour father will say "Remember that family down the street that what you get by marrying."

He refers to a large family which on several occasions has been helped by the city. Real encouraging. Everyone tells me to remain single, life is easier, than being tied down to a woman. And when married folks who have had experience say that, who am I to argue otherwise?

All the fellows have girl friends and they looked at me in astonishment one day when I casually remarked that I never had been kissed.

We go swimming, riding in my car, and the mater likes to go along—she's a good sport. But girls—nothing doing. I was at a fair last week, and the mater was watching some horse races. Two girls smiled at me in a friendly manner and moved up closer to me. As they were about to speak, the mater turned and gave us a searching glance, very much disconcerting the girls. I shrugged my shoulders toward the mater, and they nodded sympathetically and moved away. I'm not henpecked, yet you understand—but I dunno.

However, I met the loveliest little girl three years ago. She is a dear, but if I ever mention her at home the mater tells me not to be foolish. It is almost a crime. She waves to me whenever we pass in the car, but that is all. I laid $5 away last year with the intention of taking her out some evening. I still have the $5. I dressed up and went out one night, saying nothing where I was going. I went to the pictures and when I returned the mater demanded, "Did you go to see—?" meaning the girl. She acted quite stern.

Is the trouble with me or the world? Probably it is with me, though. Well, I enjoy life as it is, but, somehow, there is something lacking and sometimes I am just a little lonesome.

"NEW ENGLANDER."

You take that precious $5 and purchase yourself a thousand dollars' worth of manhood with it. Let the mater rave if she so desires. You have your life to live, and unless you are willing to be one of those abnormal souls whose existence begins and ends at mother's whim, you must start now to be you. Call up the "loveliest little girl" and begin to be a man. You have a very foolish mother.

Black But Brilliant

IF people would only take the word "breakfast" literally, make it a light meal to break the night's fast—they would most assuredly start the day in the best possible way.

Is breakfast a good thing? Yes, I think that it is. There are some men and women who function very well on the "no-breakfast" plan, but the majority would find that a hardship. And it is not necessary to forego breakfast even in the reducing diet.

The ideal breakfast, to my mind, should include fruit and a hot drink. These two things wake up the organs of the body. Almost any sort of fruit, either raw or cooked (but without sugar) is good. Oranges and grapefruit perhaps reign supreme because of the tonic values. But apples, pears, plums, prunes and so on are excellent, too. If you have a tendency toward constipation, take your fruit about fifteen minutes ahead of the rest of your breakfast.

The hot drink is a matter of personal preference. There are many people who feel that they must have coffee or tea, and they seem to be none the worse for it. Personally, I think that a coffee substitute, served with hot milk and no sugar, is better from the standpoint of health. Hot milk is cheering on a wintry morning, or hot milk with a very little chocolate in it. The usual chocolate is a pretty heavy drink for the average woman, unless she is definitely trying to gain weight. If you really prefer a cold to a hot drink, milk or buttermilk is wholesome.

For the office worker fruit and something to drink and a slice or two of whole wheat toast or of bran muffin are quite enough for breakfast. Enough, in fact, for any one who is not doing hard manual work. In that case a soft-boiled or poached egg or two and some crisp bacon might be added.

If a nourishing but light breakfast is desired, a cereal with cream suggests itself. Oatmeal, cream of wheat, whole grain wheat, all of these are satisfying hot cereals. And there are any number of good prepared cold cereals. Instead of sugar try serving them with dates, raisins or figs.

Hot breads, pancakes, meat, fish or potatoes are out of place on the breakfast table as a general daily rule.

A FASHION INSTITUTION

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

UNDERPRIVILEGED CHILDREN.

It is estimated that in every community there are for each 1,000 population two children who are definitely subnormal in nutrition, growth, and, presumably, in resistance to disease. This has nothing to do either with children who are subnormal mentally or with those who are sick or crippled or deformed.

It is a group who need a little more help than the family can give. They are growing up strong and healthy. Most of them need better air or better food, and more rest than they get at home. They need more training in health habits than the ordinary home gives them.

Of this group Kidner says: "One quarter need to go to summer camps yearly for a short vacation from home, some change of food and in order to get some instruction in personal hygiene. One-half need to be taught in fresh air schools or open window rooms. One-fourth need to spend from six months to a year in a preventorium."

A preventorium is a children's camp which runs all the year round. Each child stays there somewhere about six months. While there the child is taught how to take care of himself, how to acquire good health habits, and he is given plenty of good food, required to sleep many hours daily in the open air, to play in moderation and to attend school.

The children who especially need preventorium care are those who come from homes in which there are consumptives but who are not actively tuberculous themselves; children who are markedly underweight and pale; children who react to tuberculosis but who have no fever and cough up no sputum.

Near St. Paul university there is a county preventorium which takes care of 75 children. In this institution in summer the children dress in short trunks and spend most of their time in the sunlight and open air. They are as brown as Indians. In colder weather they get cold air baths and sleep in well ventilated rooms. Just now they are installing electricity in order to give lamp treatment in the winter.

The children who wear few clothes and live in the open air almost never have ordinary colds, sore throats and coughs. Exercise is carefully regulated. If the teeth and tonsils are in bad shape they are attended to. They give tuberculosis almost as a matter of routine, and they find it very helpful.

Taxicab Company Sued.

The Black & White Taxi Co. was sued yesterday in circuit court by Mrs. Bertha F. Ashbury, of St. Louis, Mo., who seeks to recover $10,000 damages for alleged personal injuries. Through Attorney P. S. K. Smith the plaintiff says that on January 22, 1925 while a passenger in a cab of the defendant concern on F street northwest she was injured in a collision.

VOTES IN CLOSE RACE SEALED BY OFFICIALS

West Virginians' Action Leaves Sixth District Result in Doubt.

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—Definite knowledge of the complexion of West Virginia's delegation in the lower house of Congress must await the official canvass of the votes in the Sixth district where E. T. England, Republican, has a lead of 210 votes over Representative J. Alfred Taylor, Democrat, with nine districts missing. Election officials were reported to have sealed tally sheets from the nine districts in ballot boxes, which will not be opened until the official canvass.

Four Republicans and one Democrat were elected in the other five districts. England should win in the Sixth district, the State delegation will remain politically unchanged—five Republicans and one Democrat.

Representative James M. Wolverton, Republican, was defeated by W. S. O'Brien, Democrat, in the Third district. Three Republicans were reelected and a fourth was named to succeed a Republican who did not stand for reelection.

Delaware Republican Ticket Is Victorious

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 2 (By A. P.).—The entire Republican State ticket was elected in Delaware—Robert G. Houston, member of Congress at large; Howard M. Ward, treasurer; Edward Baker, auditor; and James G. Shaw, insurance commissioner. There was no gubernatorial election.

pressively than any one considered he could bring about the accomplishment. There was little doubt in Washington but that during the two years that Smith will now pass in Albany his friends will be busy lining up national support for his presidential ambitions, and that Smith will be the man the Democrats will find the strongest of all their candidates in 1928, whether they take him or reject him.

The completion of the House on the basis of the returns which had been made last night gave the Republicans 223 seats, 15 less than their maximum strength in the Sixty-ninth Congress, and the Democrats 192, a figure 10 higher than the greatest number they have had in the present Congress.

Six seats remained unaccounted for and since there were good prospects that the Republicans would carry at least some of these, the possibility of anything approaching Democratic control of the next Congress is out of the question. Granting that the progressive strength, which now works without the Republican caucus and against the party, remains at 13, and the Republicans capture none of the seats still out, they would still have 220 members, two more than necessary for control of that organization.

Mrs. John Langley, of all of the women candidates who were seeking their first seat in the House, alone was successful. Mrs. Florence Kahn, of California; Mrs. Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, and Mrs. John J. Rogers, of Massachusetts, were returned, so that the next Congress will have four women in it.

People Will Not Follow G. O. P., Swanson Declares

(By the Associated Press.)

Results of Tuesday's elections show that the people have not accepted "the fake Coolidge prosperity," Senator Swanson, of Virginia, chairman of the Democratic speakers' bureau, declared yesterday in a statement outlining his views on the returns so far.

"Republican prosperity is like snow drifting in a storm," he said. "It piles up in one place, but leaves large spaces barren. The textile, shoe and machine industries are prosperous, while cotton, wheat and agriculture are destitute."

"The voters have shown that they have lost confidence in the Republican party and no longer will follow their leadership. The strong advocacy by Secretary Mellon of protection for large trusts and combines, in some of which he is interested, helped pile up a large vote against the Republicans."

Army Training in Turk Schools.

Military training will be introduced in all Turkish high and normal schools for boys. Attendance at summer training camps will be obligatory.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau.
Washington, Wednesday, Nov. 3—8 p. m.
Forecast—For the District of Columbia: Partly cloudy Thursday and Friday; not much change in temperature; gentle variable winds. For Maryland: Partly cloudy Thursday and Friday, possibly light local rains or snows in extreme west portions Thursday night; not much change in temperature; gentle variable winds.

For Virginia: Partly cloudy Thursday and Friday; slowly rising temperature Thursday; moderate winds, mostly northeast. The disturbance that was over western Iowa Tuesday night is now central over Illinois, and pressure is relatively low over Maine, Cuba, extreme southern Florida, northern Manitoba and the far Southwest. High pressure prevails over all other regions, with principal centers in northern New England. There have been rains within the last 24 hours in the south Atlantic and east Gulf States, and snows or rains in northern New England, northern and western New York, the Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys, the northern plains States, Wyoming and eastern Colorado. Elsewhere fair weather has prevailed. Temperature has fallen in the plains States, the central Rocky mountain region and southern Florida and Cuba, and risen in portions of the Gulf States and the Canadian north-west.

Mostly fair weather will prevail Thursday and Friday over the Mississippi river, without material change in temperature. Light local rains or snows are probable Thursday, however, in the upper Ohio valley and in portions of the lower lake region.

DEMOCRATS, JUBILANT, LOOK FORWARD TO 1928

Trend Away From Republican Declares Shaver, Reviewing Party Victory.

GAINS IN HOUSE CLAIMED

(By the Associated Press.) Gratification over the election results was expressed in statements issued last night by Chairman Shaver of the Democratic national committee and Chairman Oldfield of the Democratic congressional campaign committee. Both saw in the figures a trend toward the Democratic ranks which, they said, augurs well for the party's hopes in 1928.

"The results confirm our pre-election estimate and are very gratifying indeed," said Mr. Shaver. "Though it appears a majority of the Congress was not quite won, the gains signify a victorious advance for the Democratic party and a momentous set back for the Republican party and administration."

"In addition to the congressional, substantial gains were made in State and local tickets. Even where our candidates did not win, they, in many States and districts, cut ominously into the usual Republican majorities. The swing from Republican to Democratic voting is marked clear to the Pacific and the trend is certainly encouraging for 1928."

"With popular favor and confidence in our party so manifest it is a good time now for Democrats to survey carefully the whole situation, to weigh the opportunities of service for their party and country—a good time to keep cool and thoughtful heads."

"Let us maintain and continue the fine cooperation and moral effect of the campaign just closed. So we shall preserve the unity and power that command national confidence and win national elections."

Mr. Oldfield said his returns showed that the Democrats had gained 17 seats in the house. He listed the gains as three in New York, two in Pennsylvania, three in Missouri, three in Illinois, and one each in New Jersey, Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio, Nebraska and Oklahoma. One district in Kansas probably is lost, but the Democrats may pick up another in that State to offset it, he added.

"These calculations, he explained, do not include Indiana, where reports indicate Democratic gains of from two to four districts," and additional probable gains in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

"It appears certain the Democratic membership in the next House will be increased to not less than 200," the statement continued. "Even though we have not elected a majority of the House, it is significant that, in addition to holding almost every seat we have in the present House we have over-turned close to 20 seats, despite huge expenditures by the Republican organizations. It is an unmistakable sign of the countrywide trend to the Democratic party and its principles."

Advantage in Joining Citizen Group Cited

Advantages to be derived from membership in citizens' associations were emphasized in addresses made at the community meeting of the Congress Heights Citizens association held last night in the Congress Heights Methodist church, Nichols and Alabama avenues southeast. The speakers urged support of the membership campaign of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The speakers were Commissioners J. Franklin Bell and Proctor L. Daugherty, Jesse Suter, president of the federation, and McK. Clayton, The Rev. Dr. Edward E. Richardson, president, presided.

STATE, IN HALL TRIAL, STRIKES AT ALIBI OF WILLIE STEVENS

to get her to say that her father, James Mills, had been out of the house on the murder night.

Miss Mills in Tears.

When defense counsel objected to this testimony, Special Prosecutor Simpson shouted that he would offer proof that Henry Stevens had worked with Parker in an attempt to fasten the murders on Mills.

"I have a letter that will prove it," Senator Simpson said.

Justice Parker ruled that while the introduction of the testimony of "background" witnesses might be unusual it was not necessarily illegal and that he would not permit defense counsel to dictate the manner in which the State should present its case.

Loudly and heatedly, McCarter placed his exception in the record, declaring his clients were greatly endangered by the ruling.

Charlotte was then sworn and began her testimony by saying her mother was 33 years old at the time of her death. Senator Simpson produced a large portrait of Mrs. Mills and held it up before Charlotte. She immediately began to weep, her voice breaking slightly as she identified the portrait as that of her mother.

Tells of Card.

Edward Garrigan, New Brunswick policeman, one of the first persons to see the bodies as they lay under a crab apple tree, testified that a visiting card of Dr. Hall, which was offered in evidence, was seen by him propped against the slain rector's left foot.

Senator Simpson said he would offer proof by two experts to show the card bore the fingerprints of Willie Stevens' left index finger. The jury, without a woman member, was selected within an hour and a half. The foreman is a teamster.

There are six farmers, two clerks, a superintendent, a mason and blacksmith sitting with him. Senator Simpson's opening address required only 20 minutes. In it he said the State would show that Mrs. Mills was a good woman whose interest, after her husband became "indifferent" to her, was centered in her two children. She turned to religion for solace, he said, and met Dr. Hall, who had married a woman of wealth and refinement and had "suffered the usual result—a cold and cheerless home." The intimacy between pastor and chorister grew to be more than spiritual, he said, and in time became notorious.

Letters Intercepted.

Love letters exchanged by Dr. Hall, and Mrs. Mills came into Mrs. Hall's possession, Simpson asserted.

On the murder night, he continued, Mrs. Hall overheard a telephone conversation in which her husband made an appointment to meet Mrs. Mills in De Russys lane, where their bodies were found.

She then communicated with her brother, Henry, at his home in La Valette, N. J., he said, and her brother, Willie, and with them drove to the lane to confront Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills and show them the bodies of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills, which, he said, they became involved in a quarrel and the murder was committed.

After telling of how Mrs. Gibson, the "pig woman," heard the shots, he described how she returned to the scene later in search of a lost moccasin and saw Mrs. Hall weeping over what she now knows were the bodies of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills, with "Willie" Stevens and Carpenter near by.

"The card found on Dr. Hall's shoe bears the fingerprints of the left index finger of Willie Stevens," Simpson said. "We will prove that by expert witnesses."

He then alleged that Mrs. Hall had employed a private detective who attempted to suppress evidence and bribe witnesses.

ROBERT MANTELL PLAYS JACQUES AND BRUTUS

CAST PROVES ADEQUATE

Two Shakespearean performances were given in the Auditorium yesterday by the Robert Mantell-Genevieve Hamper company; at the matinee, "As You Like It," and at night, "Julius Caesar."

Miss Hamper as Rosalind, in "As You Like It," won favor with the matinee audience, playing against Mr. Mantell's Jacques. On the opening night there had been criticism leveled at the players because many of the auditors failed to hear the lines. A remedy was reached at the matinee and night performances yesterday. The voices, especially last night, were distinctly heard in the lower auditorium—and the lines were well read.

At night, Mr. Mantell's Marcus Brutus drew rounds of applause from his admirers. The play went with a snap and precision seldom seen in the work of repertorians.

Those assisting the stars at last night's performance were: John C. Hickey, Robert Fulton, Frederic W. Hile, Robert Strauss, Bruce Adams, John Alexander, Edwin Foss, John Burke, James Betterton, James Hendrickson, John Forrest, Charles Kent, Gilbert Sells, Abraham Ivory, Miss Olga Leeds, and Miss Mary Glover.

CHALIAPIN HERE.

Feodor Chaliapin, renowned Russian basso and operatic star, with a special company that includes Elvira de Hidalgo, alluring Spanish prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, will present Rossini's celebrated grand opera, "The Barber of Seville," at the first attraction in Mrs. Wilson-Greene's artists' course of musical events in Washington this season.

"The Barber of Seville" is in three acts and will be sung in Italian, with Chaliapin himself in the role of Don Basilio, a village organist and music teacher. Elvira de Hidalgo, who makes her first appearance before the Washington public in this opera, will sing the soprano role of Rosina, while Joseph Bobrovich, brilliant young Lithuanian tenor, will have the tenor role of the Count of Almaviva.

ASTRID AND LEOPOLD TO BE WEDDED TODAY

Stockholm, Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—Princess Astrid of Sweden, and Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium, today whirled from one official function to another, the central figures in the gay program carried out in honor of their wedding tomorrow.

Princess Astrid's day began at 7 o'clock this morning and ended at midnight at a gala performance in the opera house. Despite her busy time, she lived up to her reputation for domesticity by baking a cake in honor of Prince Leopold's twenty-fifth birthday. She gave the finishing touches to the cake just before a royal dinner tonight attended by King Gustav, King Albert, the kings of Denmark and Norway, and members of the royal families.

The dinner was held in the apartment of Princess Astrid's father, the Duke of Vastergotland. The apartment, comparatively humble as royal dwellings go, was formerly the premises of the Danish legation.

G. O. P. STANDPATTERS REBUKED, SAYS GERRY

Democratic Campaign Chairman Sees Rising Tide of Sentiment.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—United States Senator Peter G. Gerry, chairman of the Democratic national senatorial campaign committee, today issued the following statement:

"The gain of at least seven seats by the Democrats—with a number of Western States still to be heard from—is a clear repudiation of the reactionary Republican group in the United States Senate. Especially noteworthy were the defeats of such prominent standpatters as Senator Wadsworth, of New York, by Robert F. Wagner, and of Senator Butler in Massachusetts by David I. Walsh."

"There is no doubt in my mind that we are witnessing a rising tide of Democratic sentiment throughout the nation that will sweep the party to victory in 1928."

POLTS

The New York Symphony orchestra, Walter Damrosch, conductor, will give the first of a series of three concerts announced for Washington this season at Poll's theater next Tuesday afternoon, November 5, at 4:30 o'clock, under the local management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene. Paul Kochanski, eminent violinist, is announced as the soloist.

The program of the New York Symphony orchestra's first Washington concert this season will include one of the new French orchestral works that Mr. Damrosch brought back from Europe recently.

"Hill Billies" at Meeting.

"The Hill Billies," local musical organization, will entertain members of the Chillum Heights Citizens association at a meeting and rally tomorrow night at the Woodburn school, Riggs and Blair roads northeast.

BUICK today presents the Convertible-Coupe

A new and very charming version of Buick Beauty

Today Buick presents to public view the Convertible-Coupe, a spirited new sport model.

Here is the open-enclosed car, built as only Buick and Fisher can build it. Substantially built. Exquisitely built, for people who ask for the grace of the thoroughbred in their motor cars.

Lower the top for fair days, raise it when the weather blusters. Open car advantages today; tight, closed car comfort tomorrow. Enjoy every day, in this charming Buick.

The colors of this newest Buick are in Coronation Duco—the year's smartest custom effects; the upper structure is of Lenox-grey, dual-texture top-weave; the upholsteries are of hand-buffed leathers, in tones to match the body colors; the windows raise even though the top is folded, and serve as wind deflectors.

The Buick Convertible-Coupe is built on the Series 128 chassis of 128 inch wheelbase—and the engine is vibrationless beyond belief.

Drop in and view this car today. Its beauty, style, utility and moderate price will win your warm approval.

TRADE BOARD LISTS NEEDS OF CAPITAL FOR HOUSE INQUIRY

Forty Improvements Headed by National Representation for City's Betterment.

EQUITABLE GOVERNMENT APPROPRIATIONS ASKED

Proposals Range From Traction
of Firearms Sale.

National representation for the citizens of the District, continuation of the present commission form of government and payment by the Federal government of a "fair and equitable proportion for the maintenance of its Federal city"—these three general principles were embodied in the recommendations of the Washington Board of Trade yesterday to the subcommittee of the House District committee that will begin its investigation of the District government next Monday.

A list of 40 specific needs of the city was attached to the general recommendations sent to the subcommittee. All of these 40 proposed municipal improvements have been approved by the full membership of the trade body during the last few years. The three general recommendations were approved by the board of directors at its meeting Monday. The Board of Trade, with a membership of nearly 2,700 representative business and professional men of the city, has been on record favoring some of the proposed improvements listed for 20 years.

Traction Merger Proposed.

Some of the specific recommendations in the list follow: Merger of the local traction companies, new Chain bridge, high-pressure fire protection system, abolition of at least one steam railroad crossing each year, replacement of old bridges, municipal athletic stadium, sufficient annual appropriations for the National Capital park commission to enable the purchase of suitable park and playground sites, a five-year building program for branch libraries, a careful study of the project for acquiring the right-of-way of the Chesapeake & Ohio canal bridge, the Washington and Cumberland as a site for a highway between the two cities, elimination of fraudulent educational institutions and that the Federal government pay a fair proportion of the cost of maintaining the water supply of the city.

New Buildings Sought.

The recommendations include the construction of the following new buildings: Recorder of deeds office; improvement along the south side of Pennsylvania avenue between First and Fifteenth streets northwest, including the demolition of the existing unsightly buildings there; fire engine house at Connecticut and Nebraska avenues; municipal and juvenile courts; building for central police headquarters; bathing beaches, and a national guard armory.

HIGHER FARE ASKED FOR CAR MERGER

had been forwarded by him to the Senate District committee and that he had expected to be given out for publication at the Capitol.

John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., said that the North American Co. had tried to develop a merger agreement with three principal companies—organization of a new traction company in the District chartered by Congress for the securities of which stockholders in existing companies would trade their shares, the first of a base valuation under present legal provisions and service at cost, one item of the cost service being fair return on the fixed valuation. Under the service-at-cost plan, fares would be on a sliding scale, fluctuating with cost of operation. The commission is not averse to the general principles of service at cost, but is deemed unlikely to agree to it as a basis for merger, coupled with a valuation which it considers represents much more than the money invested in local street-car properties. The commissioners want the companies to agree among themselves on a ratio for division of net earnings, merge with valuations and car fares unchanged for the present, and enter into a new valuation proceeding after merger has been accomplished.

The commissioners believe that if the service-at-cost principle is to be adopted, return on actual investment instead of valuation should be considered in arriving at cost of operation. They illustrate the difference between these items by citing the case of the Capital Traction Co., which is capitalized at $18,000,000, of which $12,000,000 represents stock and the remainder bonds.

The commission's valuation of the company's property is about the same amount, but the Supreme court of the District of Columbia has increased its valuation to more than $20,000,000, from which decision the commission is appealing. The hearing opened at 10 a. m. with a statement of its purpose by Col. Bell and a statement of mes-

Airplanes to Be Tagged And Numbered Like Autos

(By the Associated Press.)
Airplanes hereafter will be tagged and numbered like automobiles. The Commerce Department, acting under the new aviation law, has started its census of flying machines in operation, and after it has been completed none will be allowed to take the air unless its license and number are properly displayed.

Preliminary official estimates indicate that possibly 5,000 planes are flying about the country.

Plans that had been suggested to induce the companies to merge, read by Maj. W. E. R. Covell, his assistant. These plans included penalties to be meted out to the companies if they refused to merge and rewards to be bestowed on them if they entered into an operating pact. Suggested penalties included revocation of the companies' charters, chartering of new companies to use existing tracks, increase of gross revenue taxes of the companies, imposition of franchise taxes on them, institution of unlimited motor bus competition and preparation by an engineer of a number of compulsory operating regulations, such as use of trackways, rerouting and joint use of trackways.

Proposed rewards for merging included abolition of present taxes for crossings policemen, bridge repair and street paving, protection from bus or other competition by granting of a guaranteed monopoly and reduction of the gross revenue tax.

Citizens State Views.

Representatives of civic organizations followed for two hours with statements of the desirability of a merger and discussion of the punitive methods proposed. Two speakers ridiculed the idea of increasing taxes to be paid by the companies, pointing out that the law requires granting of car fares sufficiently high to yield reasonable return on valuation and that car fares would be increased if taxes were boosted.

Imposition of compulsory universal transfers and punishment of the street car companies by unlimited jitney bus competition until they agreed to merge, met with approval.

Then Ham took the stand. Prior proceedings sank into a dull background in comparison with the interest he aroused immediately. He read the letter he had sent to the commission June 14 and which had been suppressed. It said, in part:

"This plan (referring to that broached by the North American Co.) further provided for acceptance by the Washington Railway & Electric Co. of a junior position, so far as new securities of the merged railroad company were concerned. * * * While the commission has never met since the original conference, it has impressed itself upon us that the commission is not inclined to approve any plan providing for a reasonable return upon the fair value of the property determined in accordance with existing law."

"We can not believe the newly merged company could reasonably be denied its constitutional right of earning a reasonable return upon the fair value of its property and certainly the company would be in no position, under such conditions, to accept a junior position as to securities in the new company."

"Realizing that the approval of the public utilities commission is necessary to any proposed plan of merger and noting, also, the disposition of Congress to legislate for reorganization of the public utilities commission, we felt that all further negotiations regarding the merger should be suspended until the attitude of Congress in this respect was evidenced by enactment of legislation."

Ham intimated that the companies would continue to wait, before presenting detailed merger plans for official approval until the new public utilities commission was created. He then said he had been for a merger since 1919, but that the question should not be approached, as it had been by those who had spoken before him, with reference to benefits to be expected immediately, but that a broad view of ultimate advantages should be the controlling one.

Must Be Prosperous Company.

"Any company that is to give this city the services to which it is entitled must be a prosperous company," he said. "Then build on sound lines and don't talk about whether a merger is going to raise or reduce car fares."

"This commission has not told the public that we are not now enjoying a fare large enough to yield a reasonable return on our investment. We should merge with an increase of fare. If Congress is not

CHECK LAW CHANGES PROPOSED BY GIVEN

Violators Escape, Assistant District Attorney Tells Credit
Men of Washington.

Amendment of the bad check law of the District was proposed by Ralph Given, assistant United States district attorney, in an address last night before the Washington Association of Credit Men at their semiannual banquet in the Raleigh hotel.

There are, Mr. Given said, too many loopholes in the present law, which permit persons acquainted with its provisions to escape the intent of the law. He warned merchants that a writer of a post dated check could not be prosecuted if the check was not good, because such a check was nothing more than a promissory note. Mr. Given declared that one of the principal defects of the law was the provision that five days' notice must be given the makers of bad checks before they can be prosecuted, enabling many persons to evade punishment.

U. S. RAILROADS' FREIGHT
LOADINGS REMAIN HIGHReport for Week Ended October 23 Shows Only Slight Decrease From Record.

BONDS HOLD INTEREST

By F. W. PATTERSON.

An unprecedented freight traffic continues to be handled by the railroads of the country. Loading of revenue freight for the week ended October 23 totaled 1,209,932 cars. This was a decrease of only 1,120 under the preceding week, when 1,210,163 cars were loaded, the greatest number for any one week ever reported, according to reports filed yesterday by the carriers with the American Railway association.

The total for the week was an increase of 88,366 cars over the corresponding week last year and a gain of 55,990 cars over the corresponding week in 1924. Loading of freight has been in excess of 1,000,000 cars in 22 weeks of the current year.

All districts, except the Potomac, Southern and Northwest, reported increases over the week before in the total loading of all commodities, while all districts reported increases compared with the corresponding week last year.

	1925	1926
Five weeks in January	4,622,696	4,658,919
Five weeks in February	2,656,449	2,622,647
Five weeks in March	3,617,109	3,742,415

Meet Here Saturday.

The executive committee of the National Safe Deposit Advisory Council will meet in Washington Saturday, according to announcement yesterday by W. O. McClure, secretary of the council.

Arrangements are being made by several local bankers to entertain this representative group of bank officials at a luncheon in the Willard hotel.

Members of the council are Oscar W. Coddington, manager of the First National Safe Deposit Vaults, Boston, Mass., president; Philip L. Malouin, secretary-treasurer of the Connecticut Safe Deposit association, vice president; L. V. Ennis, president of New York Safe Deposit association, New York; C. J. Shaw, secretary of the New Jersey Safe Deposit association; L. E. Thomas, president of the Louisiana Safe Deposit association, and W. O. McClure, secretary of the council.

Good Trade Volume.
Trading on the Washington Stock Exchange was in fairly good volume yesterday with interest centered chiefly in the bond division. Capital Traction was strong at 141 1/2. Washington Gas (1926) 5s changed hands at par, while Georgetown Gas Light 5s brought 99 1/2 and the 6s of the

WALL STREET GOSSIP

New York, Nov. 3. (By A. P.)—Contrary to earlier expectations that the unfiled tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corporation for October would show a decrease, it is now believed in well informed quarters that another increase probably will be reported, owing to large rail contracts placed during the month. Another factor making an increase possible is that October deliveries are not expected to reach the monthly rate of 1,100,000 tons in August and September. The gain in unfiled orders for September was 51,174 tons.

General Motors Corporation could well afford to pay an extra dividend of $5 at the next meeting of directors, said Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president, on his return from abroad today, but emphasized that the corporation should have on hand at least $100,000,000 for the operation of the property. An extensive program involving between $50,000,000 and $75,000,000 has been outlined, he said, the cost of which would be extended over the next four or five years.

J. P. Morgan & Co. have agreed to underwrite a new issue of 292,637 shares of Marland Oil Co. stock which is to be offered to stockholders at $50 a share. Holders of record November 15 have the right to subscribe to 20 per cent additional stock.

James Hammond, of Hayden, Stone & Co., has bought from Paul Guenther about 125,000 shares of common stock of Onyx Hosiery, Inc., out of 150,000 shares outstanding.

Cotton manufacturers comprised more than three-fourths of the textile exports of the United States in the first nine months this year, it is shown in data compiled by the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York, which estimates that foreign customers have spent almost five times as much for American cotton goods in 1926 as for other American textile manufactures. Exports of cotton manufactures in the 9 months were valued at $101,966,245, or 81 per cent of all textile manufactures exported.

Consolidated Coal declared a dividend of $1.75 a share on the cumulative preferred stock, payable December 1 to holders of record November 20, reducing accumulations to $8.75 a share. The previous payment was made on February 20.

The largest month's sales on record is reported by the National Cash Register Co. for October, with notable gains in both foreign and domestic business.

Net income of American Water Works & Electric for the year ended September 30 was $3,938,634, equal after preferred dividends to $4.56 a share on the common stock, against $3,078,457 or $3.62 a share the year before. Gross revenues gained $4,152,191 to $44,283,033.

Freight traffic on the Atchafalaya, Topeka & Santa Fe in October was heavier than in October last year, 298,188 carloads against 195,449.

Steel mill operations in the Pittsburgh district are around 80 per cent of capacity, compared with 85 per cent a month ago.

The Chesapeake & Ohio, the Norfolk & Western and the Virginian carried their greatest tonnage of coal to Hampton Roads in October, total shipments reaching 3,047,333 tons. The C. & O. handled 1,259,947, the Norfolk & Western 1,159,182, and the Virginian 637,204 tons.

Net profit of the Ward Baking Corporation for the 15 weeks ended October 16 amounted to $1,292,400.

Authorized $2,500,000.

To be presently issued $1,500,000.

Union Trust Company of Maryland, Trustee

The following information is summarized from a letter of M. A. Walker, Esq., President of the United Porto Rican Sugar Company.

PROPERTIES The important group of properties which the United Porto Rican Sugar Company controls are advantageously located in the eastern part of Porto Rico. The companies comprise a complete producing and operating unit with adequate land of very high quality, modern equipped sugar mills with total capacity of about 500,000 bags per annum, their own railroads with ample equipment and their own terminals with excellent harbor facilities.

The properties include over 16,000 acres of land. The cane lands are among the very best in Porto Rico. They are adaptable to the raising of tobacco or other staple crops and are readily marketable for such purposes at prices which would average conservatively $250 per acre and which independent of other valuable factors of safety should be sufficient to considerably more than cover the amount of the Company's outstanding note issue.

SECURITY These notes are the direct obligation and only funded debt of the United Porto Rican Sugar Company whose outstanding Preferred and Common Stocks represent a recent cash investment of $2,250,000 ranking junior to this issue.

They are further secured by pledge with the Trustee of:

- An equal face amount of notes representing the only funded debt (except purchase money mortgages of $12,600) of the Juncos Central Company, one of the principal subsidiaries of the United Porto Rican Sugar Company, the value of whose assets alone have been conservatively appraised, upon completion of this financing, in excess of $6,000,000 (including net quick assets of $725,000), or over four times the amount of these notes to be presently outstanding.
- More than a majority of the Common Stock of a profitable operating Company (Central Pasto Viejo, Inc.) which is being acquired out of the proceeds of this note issue.

EARNINGS For the nineteen years of its existence the principal subsidiary of this company (The Juncos Central Company) whose notes as above stated are specifically pledged as security for this issue, has always operated at a profit, and for the past ten years earnings, before depreciation and income taxes, have been as follows:

1916.....	$482,967.29	1921.....	$251,603.50
1917.....	460,655.41	1922.....	59,095.43
1918.....	464,123.29	1923.....	511,918.22
1919.....	370,536.97	1924.....	606,893.50
1920.....	719,688.04	1925.....	325,204.51

From the above it will be noted that for the past three years, which cover one of the most unprofitable periods in the history of the sugar industry, the earnings have averaged $481,338.74, or over 4 1/2 times annual interest requirements; and after income taxes earnings have averaged $422,870.44 or over four times interest requirements on this issue.

In addition thereto the earnings of the United Porto Rican Sugar Company from other sources should be over twice the interest requirements of this issue of notes.

It is estimated that even under the prevailing low prices of sugar, savings resulting from unified control and management and the institution of modern scientific methods will bring such earnings to over $10.00 a share.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE The proceeds of the present financing will be used to acquire more than a majority of the Common Stock of a profitable operating Company (Central Pasto Viejo, Inc.) and for further development and extension of the various subsidiaries of the United Porto Rican Sugar Company.

CONVERTIBLE FEATURE On and after January 1st, 1927, each $1,000 note is convertible into 20 shares of Common Stock of the United Porto Rican Sugar Company or is convertible into 20 shares No Par Value Participating Cumulative Preferred Stock, which while outstanding is in turn convertible into Common Stock share for share prior to October 1st, 1928, and thereafter on the basis of three shares of Preferred Stock for two shares Common Stock. The Preferred Stock is entitled to annual cumulative dividends of $3.50 per share and after the Common Stock has received $3.50 per share in dividends, it participates equally until the Preferred Stock has received a total of $5.00. This conversion privilege should prove a very valuable one.

SINKING FUND The Indenture will provide for a Sinking Fund equal to 25% of the net earnings of the Juncos Central Company, to be used by the Trustee for purchase of notes in the open market up to the then current call price. If not so obtainable, the notes to be called by lot at such price.

MANAGEMENT The management of the Company will be in the hands of men long associated in the sugar business and the Board of Directors in the hands of strong financial interests who own a very substantial amount of Preferred and Common Stocks of the Company.

GENERAL Porto Rico is a United States territory and is governed by the same form of laws. Raw sugar produced in Porto Rico enters the United States free of duty ranging from 1.76 to 2.20 cents per pound imposed on other foreign sugars. As a result of this advantage, the Porto Rican sugar companies have almost without exception been able to make money even during periods of depression in the sugar industry. Most of the Porto Rican sugar companies, especially those under American control, are sound financially and have paid dividends over a long period of years.

LISTING Application will be made to list this issue of Notes as well as the Preferred and Common Stocks of the United Porto Rican Sugar Company on the Baltimore Stock Exchange.

The financial statements of the Company and its subsidiaries have been duly certified, the properties have been independently appraised and all legal matters approved on behalf of and to the satisfaction of the bankers.

A SOUND DIVIDEND POLICY

THE policy of paying regular quarterly dividends in Common Stock—2 1/4% quarterly—inaugurated by this Company in April, 1923, is equivalent to combining cash dividends with rights to subscribe at par for additional stock. It differs, in effect, from a practice, long established among corporations of paying dividends in cash and offering subscription rights, only in that it gives stockholders more frequent and convenient subscription privileges.

Common Stock issued since the present dividend policy was adopted three and one-half years ago has been as follows:

	Par Value	Increase	Total
Outstanding March 31, 1925.....	$22,556,950
Issued for cash on outstanding subscription warrants, and for acquisition of new properties.....	$7,549,457	34%
In payment of dividends on Common Stock.....	9,789,224	43%
Total increase.....	$17,338,681	77%	17,338,681
Outstanding September 30, 1926.....			$39,895,631

During the same period Balance available for Common Stock Dividends and Surplus increased 110%.

The Common Stock issued in payment of dividends was equal to about 7% of the cost of net additions to plants and systems of operating subsidiaries during the same period, not including the new properties acquired.

The electric industry has, on the average, doubled in periods of approximately five years. The necessity of extensive use of electric power in practically every important industry to keep down production costs, and the many new applications of its use for both domestic and commercial purposes, assure the continued sound growth of the industry.

Well operated public utility companies must keep pace with the growth of the communities they serve in order to earn and retain public confidence and retain the exclusive right to serve their territory. Their financial position should be such as to warrant the highest credit and encourage a free flow of the large amounts of needed capital.

A conservative stock dividend policy is admirably adapted to the sound and rapidly growing electric light and power business. Subsidiaries such as ours should obtain about one-half of their capital requirements by the issuance of bonds, and the balance by preferred stocks, sold locally, and by common stocks.

The parent company must make additional investments in the common stocks of its operating subsidiaries in order to maintain well balanced capital structures and prevent impairment of their credit.

At the end of last year the company's balance sheet showed a good financial condition. Current assets exceeded slightly over $14,000,000. The current liabilities amounted about $3,500,000. Funded debt standing totals $6,500,000. Bank notes total $750,000.

The first preferred stock issue of $1,000,000 was sold in 1929 and 1930. Thereafter there were no new issues until 1934, in which year $1,000,000 were resumed, and accumulated dividends liquidated by the issuance of 7 per cent convertible preferred stock. Payments on the 7 per cent issue were made in 1935.

COBB QUILTS TIGERS; HOWLEY TO MANAGE BROWNS

Hilltop Team Primed for Syracuse

25 Players, Coaches, Faculty Members Leave Tonight.

O'Neil and Thompson Likely to Start in Backfield.

By JACK-ESPEY.
COACH LOU LITTLE has his Georgetown university football team on edge and eager to take a shot at Syracuse's big Orange eleven Saturday in the New York city stadium. The last hard scrimmage preparatory to the clash was staged yesterday at the Hilltop and the Blue and Gray players came through it in a satisfactory manner. One thing remains a problem to Coach Little at this date, but that does not give him great worry. He is undecided as to who will fill a couple of the backfield berths, although he says that O'Neil and Thompson will get the call if they are in condition.

These two looked to be in shape as they dashed about in yesterday's scrimmage. Both had been nursing injuries of slight importance but apparently did not show any effects of them in the hot workout.

Both O'Neil and Thompson mean a lot to Georgetown on account of their speed. It is doubtful if there is a single man in the squad who can out-step them with the ball. Thompson showed the fans a bit of Charley Paddock stuff last Saturday when he ran 99 yards through the Lebanon Valley team to a touchdown.

The remainder of the Hilltop regulars are in fine condition. With the exception of Monson, all will start against Syracuse. Jerry Carroll, scrappy guard, will replace Monson while the latter will be held in reserve to fill any one of three positions in case of an emergency.

Monson is an able performer at guard, end and center, and should either of the starting guards and ends or Grigsby, the center, be injured, he will get the call.

The probable Georgetown starting line-up will be McGrath, left end; Saur, left tackle; Carroll, left guard; Grigsby, center; Connaughton, right guard; Mosko, right tackle; Walte, right end; Gormley, quarterback; Thompson, left halfback; O'Neil, right halfback, and Nork, fullback.

Coach Little has developed a couple of strong backfield substitutes in Dwyer and Scott, who can replace Thompson and O'Neil with little loss to the effectiveness of the team's attack. And as far as defensive play is concerned, Scott doesn't concede a thing to anybody in the varsity backfield.

War College Course Gets Ploughing Today

THE Army War college golf course, as nifty a group of fairways, bunkers and greens as can be found anywhere, will be tossed to the mercy of the sport scribes of the five local papers today, the occasion being the fourth competition for the Cleland cup, emblematic of the golf championship of Washington sports writers and sponsored by Capt. John R. D. Cleland, athletic officer at Washington barracks.

The program calls for eighteen holes medal play, nine in the morning and nine in the afternoon, with a luncheon at which Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commander of the post, will preside in between rounds.

Handicaps have been distributed, which will make it a hard matter for Harry Frye, of the Star, and Heinie Miller, previous victor, who will play today, to win. Juno Kiner, formerly of The Post, and champion in the last event, will not defend his title.

UNDER DOGS HAVE TITLE CHANCE

CHICAGO, Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—Customized by years of buffeting to chinning themselves on the lower rungs of the Big Ten football ladder, are blinking in the spotlight with such distinguished comrades as Michigan and Ohio State as the conference race shifts out the weaker teams.

The Wild Cats and the Boiler-makers, whose annual contest in many a year has been to decide which was worst, will meet at Evanston Saturday with the bright chance of a conference title for the victory.

Purdue was tied by Wisconsin, and Northwestern's spotless record consists of a pair of victories over Indiana, but the team which emerges may find itself the only unbeaten conference eleven on Thanksgiving day.

Ohio State and Michigan will meet to eliminate one of their number, and the Buckeyes still have Illinois to subdue.

Northwestern is a favorite to win from Purdue in Saturday's melee, but the Boiler-makers don't mind that and are grooming their running and passing attack for the fray.

The tilt may be a contest between the Baker-Lewis team and the Wilcox-Koransky combination. Northwestern is devising an adequate defense for Wilcox and worked to-night on new plays, while the Boiler-makers labored to strengthen their defense.

Best Line-Up Will Start for G. W.

Coach Crum Has Full Strength Available for Ursinus Game.

Saturday's Starters Are to Be Named This Afternoon.

FOR the first time this season Coach Crum will be able to pick his full strength to take the field for George Washington in the Camp memorial fund clash with Ursinus college Saturday at Griffith stadium. The Colonials are in A No. 1 physical shape and showed it yesterday in a stiff scrimmage session with the Gallaudet eleven.

Crum will select the George Washington line-up today. So far, only Stehman and Capt. Sapp, backs, are certain of opening the game, but a radical change with respect to the other varsity men is not looked for.

George Washington expects to find Ursinus a worthy opponent, contrary to reports that the G street school is overconfident following the fine showing made against Penn State. The Colonials bear in mind that an overconfident spirit caused them to get nothing better than a scoreless tie with Ursinus last year, when they counted upon winning by two or three touchdowns.

Added interest to the game, which, because of its affiliation with the movement to gather funds to build a memorial in honor of the late Walter Camp has won the support of prominent Washington sportsmen and business men, is being given by the presence of Charley Van Meter, former Central High School tackle, as a probable starting player in the George Washington line-up.

Although his work so far this season has not been brought to the attention of the public, Van Meter has been one of the most efficient linemen of the Colonial squad. He has played in every contest and has stood the strain well.

The extensive preparations of details incident to the game are nearly completed. A band, which will be seated with George Washington students on the south side of the gridiron, is the latest addition to the program. Before the contest opens at 2:30 o'clock, the bugler will sound "taps" in memory of Walter Camp.

Authorities at George Washington anticipate the largest crowd that ever has witnessed any of their contests. The East will add to its already impressive lead over the South and mid-West, for Yale rules a strong favorite over Maryland, while William and Mary is not expected to seriously threaten the powerful Columbia eleven which found itself last week in a sensational victory over Cornell.

Next week, however, there will be a fresh outbreak of war between outstanding contenders for national honors, with Army and Notre Dame unlimbering their guns here in one of the major battles of the campaign.

Haskell Indians lock with Boston College and West Virginia with Centre in two of the other inter-sectional games on the November 13 schedule.

Y.M.C.A. Organizing A Volley Ball Team

The local Y. M. C. A. expects to put a representative volleyball team in the field this winter. Intensive volleyball has grown to be a sport of national character. Sectional, State and national tournaments are held each year, with hundreds of teams from all sections of the country participating.

Team practice is being held for the present at 1:15 p. m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week at the "Y" gymnasium. Try-outs for places on the team will be held Tuesdays, 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. Experienced players or those desiring to try for the team are urged to come out. Give your name to one of the physical directors if you are interested. A volleyball league will be organized if enough players are available.

Navy Yard Marines And Battery A Play

The Navy Yard Marines and Battery A, of Fort Myer, will endeavor to settle their little gridiron differences when the teams meet on the latter's field Sunday at 2 o'clock. The service eleven met last Sunday, but neither outfit was able to score.

Eastern Teams Have Edge In Intersectional Battles

Maryland, Yale Play One of Pair Listed for Saturday; Army and Notre Dame Meet in Important Game Nov. 13.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—There will be only two Eastern flares in the intersectional gridiron strife this week-end as traditional foes move to the center of the stage, with chief interest centered in the struggles between Harvard and Princeton at Cambridge and Pennsylvania and Penn State at Philadelphia.

Indications are that in both contests the East will add to its already impressive lead over the South and mid-West, for Yale rules a strong favorite over Maryland, while William and Mary is not expected to seriously threaten the powerful Columbia eleven which found itself last week in a sensational victory over Cornell.

Next week, however, there will be a fresh outbreak of war between outstanding contenders for national honors, with Army and Notre Dame unlimbering their guns here in one of the major battles of the campaign.

Haskell Indians lock with Boston College and West Virginia with Centre in two of the other inter-sectional games on the November 13 schedule.

Petworth Grid Title Is at Stake Sunday

Two football teams which hail from Petworth, the Cardinals and the Tremonts, will fight it out on the Tidal basin field Sunday for the championship of this section. Hostilities are scheduled to start at 3 o'clock.

The Cards will drill tonight and all players are expected to report to the Park View playgrounds at 7:30 o'clock.

Mercury Determined To Jolt Apache Hopes

The Mercury A. C. eleven invades Union park Sunday determined to avenge itself for two defeats at the hands of the Apaches last season, which cost the Southwest color bearers the championship. Both teams defeated the Barracks Marines.

A defeat for either in Sunday's game will be a jolt to its chances in the District titular race.

C. U. GRIDDERS IN AN EASY DRILL

Blue Ridge Game Saturday to See Many Subs in Action.

PLEASANT with the showing of his men against the strong Loyola outfit at New Orleans and viewing Saturday's game with Blue Ridge as an easy one, Coach Jack McAuliffe is not driving the Catholic university this week. Yesterday's workout consisted of only a passing drill, the forerunner to intensive practice in the overhead game which will be used against Holy Cross a week from Saturday in the most important contest of the Brooklanders' schedule.

Ray Foley, the brainy Catholic quarterback and the team's best forward passer, fortunately escaped injury at New Orleans last week-end. He is the center around which the Brooklanders' aerial attack is being built.

Four members of the varsity team did not fare so well, Tierney and Laford sustaining nasty leg wounds, McGovern losing five teeth and Harvey receiving face cuts from an opponent's shoe.

Laford and Tierney probably will not play against Blue Ridge, for Coach McAuliffe is anxious to have them ready for the Holy Cross engagement. That game is to be played in Worcester, Mass., McAuliffe's home town. So naturally the Catholic coach wants to show his people good football team.

Most of the reserve players will get a chance in the Blue Ridge contest. Chick Heiner already has been named to take the place of Manfreda, halfback, who was laid up with injuries in the Marine clash, and others to fill in for Laford and Tierney will be selected today when the only scrimmage of the week will be staged.

Bezdek Drives State For Game With Penn

State College, Pa., Nov. 3.—The giant flood lights on New Beaver field burned late tonight as Penn State coach sent the Nittany Lions through their last hard drill in preparation for the game with the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia on Saturday. The Lions will hold a light workout tomorrow afternoon and will depart about 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

Much secrecy featured today's workout as a number of plays were perfected especially for the game with the red and blue. The Lion gridders are eagerly looking forward to Saturday's game in the hope of being able to redeem previous defeats by a victory over the Quakers.

Just once since Hugo Bezdek took up the coaching reins at Penn State have the Lions gone down to defeat on Franklin field, that being in 1922, when the score was 7 to 6. Capt. Weston and his mates will battle to the finish to maintain this record this week.

ROSES MEET CARDS.

The Epiphany Roses, in their second start of the season, will meet the Cardinal Seniors at the Epiphany gym tonight at 8 o'clock. This game, like the one with the Arrows is considered just a scrimmage for the quints as both teams are preparing for the coming senior championship series.

MORIARITY IS NAMED TO FILL THE PILOT'S POSITION AT DETROIT

Resignation Follows Failure to Lead Club to Title. Sisler's Job Is Taken by Manager of the Toronto Leafs.

"Georgia Peach" Ends 21 Years' Service; Is "Wearied." New Leader Offered $13,000 Per Year, Reports Say.

DETROIT, Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—The tocsin has sounded for Ty Cobb. After 21 years of brilliant baseball the Georgian, wearying of constant criticism for his failure to develop a pennant-winning club, resigned today as manager of the Detroit Tigers.

George Moriarity, the American league umpire who made his baseball reputation as third baseman for the Detroit team, will be the new manager. His selection was announced today by President Frank J. Navin.

Cobb left for his Augusta, Ga., home immediately after tendering his resignation. Friends, however, said that Cobb will devote his entire time to various business interests (he is generally reputed to be the wealthiest of the baseball players), and will not don a uniform for at least a year.

The announcement came as a distinct surprise to Detroit fans. Cobb has been severely criticized, especially in the past two years, for his management of the Tigers. Many fans have yelled loudly for his resignation.

Often boos have mingled with cheers in the past two years when he took his turn at bat or trotted in from centerfield to argue with an umpire.

But Cobb has remained, devoting all his baseball skill and smartness developed by 21 years of major league play, to giving Detroit the best ball club he could.

Dissension was often reported in the club. This player and that Ty Cobb may head Dodgers next year.

New York, Nov. 3.—While Ty Cobb has resigned as manager of the Detroit Tigers, he is not yet through with big league baseball. According to a report circulated here tonight, the famous Georgia Peach probably will become president of the Brooklyn club next year.

Steve McKeever, who is now waiting to undergo an operation in a Brooklyn hospital, was in communication with Cobb before the Brooklyn magnate was taken ill. McKeever at the time made a proposition to the out-felder to manage the Brooklyn team next season. Not only was Cobb ready to come to Brooklyn, but he was anxious to finish his playing career by leading the National league in batting.

Wilbert Robinson will not continue as president, he has admitted himself. It is considered probable Cobb will be made club president next year, to become manager the following season if Robbie fails again.

player was said to be unable to "get along" with Cobb. His handling of pitchers was objected to by many.

During the 1926 season when the team dropped low in the standings, attendance began falling off. Circus bleachers which were needed in other years in the outfield stood empty even on summer Sunday afternoons.

There was no questioning Cobb's sincerity of purpose, nor his enthusiasm; there were doubts, often expressed, as to his managerial ability.

President Navin was always one of the Georgian's strongest friends. Little more than a year ago when the city of Detroit tendered Cobb a public banquet and presented him with a costly hall clock, Navin handed Cobb a check for $10,000 as a gift from the club in recognition of Cobb's part in its up-building.

Cobb began his Tiger career in 1905. He has never played with any other major league club. The financial success of the Detroit baseball club is intertwined with the days in which Cobb was base-

Illini Band Causing Trouble With Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 3 (By A. P.).—The trip of the University of Illinois band to the Illinois-Chicago game here next Saturday involved the traditional Western conference rivalry in discussion today of a possible break in athletic relations after the gridiron encounter.

At the State university there were persistent rumors of an imminent break over Chicago's refusal to admit more than 100 of the Illinois huskies to Stags field while Chicago officials expressed surprise at the reported situation.

Fryon Crowds Grange For Grid Spotlight

Eddie Fryon, former Colgate star, now an important member of the New York Yankees' football team, is crowding the colorful Grange out of the spotlight. Fryon played a prominent part in Grange victory at Philadelphia last week and was the outstanding figure in a rout of Rock Island in New York last.

Fryon scored two touchdowns was a factor in the scoring of two others, and contributed three points after touchdown.

Wood Beats Wolfe In 18.2 Title Play

C. P. Wood defeated Capt. Charles Wolfe last night, 250 to 241, in the first match in the District championship 18.2 balking tournament, which is being staged at the Arcadia parlors. Wood averaged 3 1/2.

This evening's match calls for C. J. Larashi, Jr., to cross cues with J. P. Courrier.

Barracks "Kiddies" Organize Cage Team

The Washington Barracks Athletic club basketball team, recently organized by sons of officers stationed at the local army post, desires games with 125-pound clubs.

A game is wanted especially for this Saturday, either on the opponent's floor or at home in the barracks gymnasium. Arrangements may be made by phoning Coach Taylor at Washington barracks 73.

COURT OF APPEALS TO DECIDE IF 'HUNCH' MAY CAUSE ARREST

Apprehension of Cohn on Suspicion of Transporting Liquor Argued Illegal.

PROBABLE CAUSE GIVEN AS POLICEMAN'S DEFENSE

Highest Tribunal, on That Ground, Has Ruled Search-Warrant Unnecessary.

A liquor case, of importance to the prohibition enforcement authorities, especially to agents, policemen and sheriffs who are enforcing the prohibition laws, was argued in the court of appeals yesterday by District Attorney Peyton Gordon and his assistant, Raymond Neudecker.

This case involves the question of whether or not a "hunch" or a "suspicion" that an automobile may contain liquor constitutes "probable cause" to the extent that an arrest and search may be lawfully made without either a warrant of arrest or a search warrant.

In ordinary cases a citizen is free from embarrassment of search and seizure without one or more warrants and the officer making an arrest or search without "probable cause" is liable for damages in a civil suit. The Supreme Court of the United States made this plain in what is known as the Georgia case, which involved liquor carried in an automobile. In that case the police and prohibition agents were empowered to search automobiles upon a public highway for "probable cause" and if it turned out that "probable cause" did not exist, the offended citizen could sue.

Occurred in 1923.

The case before the Appellate Court is the appeal of Morris Cohn from a sentence of 90 days in jail on a charge of possession and transportation of liquor. Policeman Kew arrested Cohn on Georgia avenue on October 29, 1923, and preferred the liquor charges after his "hunch" or "suspicion" that Cohn's car carried liquor proved to be true. The "hunch" or "suspicion" was based on Kew's acquaintance with Cohn. Kew had no warrant of any kind. His attention was attracted to Cohn, the record shows, because of a minor violation of the traffic laws.

The "probable cause" as required by the United States Supreme Court was, in this case, the "hunch" or "suspicion" entertained by Kew (and the knowledge by the policeman that Cohn had "been mixed up in liquor cases before"), that there might be liquor in the car. Several gallons of liquor were found in Cohn's automobile but he explained the presence of the liquor by stating that a friend had asked him to deliver several packages, the contents of which he knew nothing about.

Court Holds "Hunch" Legal.

Attorneys Whelan and O'Connell, counsel for Cohn, contested the right of the prosecution to try Cohn on the ground of the alleged arrest without "probable cause." The court below overruled the contention and held that the "hunch" or "suspicion" constituted probable cause.

Kew admitted that the only reason he had for searching Cohn's car was the "hunch" or "suspicion." In nearly all other cases there must be an over act of some sort on the part of a citizen before a policeman may lawfully attempt to confirm his "hunch" or "suspicion." In Cohn's case he had done absolutely nothing to cause Kew to believe his car carried liquor, except, Kew said, he knew that Cohn had "been mixed up in liquor cases before." The appellate court took the case under advisement.

Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Dickson, retired, president of the local branch, will make the presentation to Assistant Secretary of War MacNider, president, Second Division association. The ceremony will be held in Assistant Secretary MacNider's office, State and Navy building.

Habeas Corpus Writ Releases Prisoner

Samuel Epstein, who charged that he was being illegally detained in jail, sued out a writ of habeas corpus yesterday in the District Supreme court and was released under $500 bond by Chief Justice McCoy for a hearing on November 24.

According to Epstein's petition, filed by Attorney Nita S. Hinman, he pleaded guilty to a charge of selling liquor June 19 in police court and was released on his personal bond. On September 30, he says, he was brought before Judge Mattingly, sent to jail for six months and fined $1,000. Epstein says he had not violated the terms of his personal bond. The petition for the writ is based on the alleged lack of power of the police court to revoke personal bonds.

SAILOR ASHORE TO WEAR REGULATION RAINCOAT

Navy Men Win First Step Toward Uniforms for Leave Periods.

BUREAU REQUESTS BIDS

The "gobs" have won a point in their campaign for off-duty "togs." It was announced at the Navy Department yesterday that a raincoat which enlisted men can wear as part of the regulation uniform, and on leave, with civilian clothing, had been authorized.

About 12,000 will be purchased. The new coat will be black, of double texture waterproof material of cravenette type, with a half belt in the back, made on lines of a civilian raincoat.

Its use by enlisted personnel is not compulsory, but when a raincoat is worn it must be of this standard type. It is intended primarily for wear ashore, but can be used as part of the regulation uniform for standing watch and other duties aboard ship.

The new raincoat is not intended to take the place of the "oilskins" now issued to men for temporary use during heavy weather at sea. The bureau of supplies has requested bids to be opened next week, and expects to obtain coats at a price at which they can be sold to the men at about $8 each.

In the meantime, sailors will continue their clamor for a suitable shore-leave uniform. A yachting cap, double-breasted coat and straight-legged trousers of blue, similar to those of the petty officers, but with black bone buttons and without gilt ornamentation, is favored. "Jack ashore" would discard the round hat, fish hat, blouse and scarf and bell-bottom trousers for a less conspicuous garb.

Cy Press Club Elects Mrs. Webster Head

Officers for the ensuing year were announced yesterday by the Cy Press club, a woman's organization of the National University Law school. The members of the club will be entertained at tea Sunday by the newly elected president, in her home, 419 Fourth street northwest.

Those elected were Mrs. Ann Webster, president; Miss Lida B. Kendall, vice president; Miss Anne B. Leach, secretary; Mrs. Sonia Sasuly, treasurer; Miss Elizabeth K. Prender, reporter, and Miss Ellen K. Raedy, sergeant at arms.

SIX MOTHERS CHOSEN TO RECEIVE PENSIONS

Board Next Week to Announce First Grants Under New Law.

The first six mothers to receive public pensions will be given their first allotments under the new mothers' pension law Wednesday, the board of public welfare announced yesterday.

A special committee has been investigating the applications of more than 200 women. It will meet again today to consider further cases to be passed on tomorrow. The committee will meet twice a week until all the cases are disposed of. Payments will be made on the 10th and 25th of each month and will continue until the family finances are such that the pension is no longer needed.

Secretary George Wilson explained yesterday that an appropriation of $65,000 for relief and $10,000 for administration expenses has been made for the remainder of this fiscal year. The board has no limitation on the amount of the pensions, but is allowed to use its discretion. The appropriation must be increased annually for a few years, but eventually the turnover will keep the amount needed almost stationary, Mr. Wilson said.

Steeple-Jack Practice Costs Man $15 Fine

Henry C. Wilson, a painter, was fined $15 in police court yesterday because he insisted on practicing for a steeplejack job. He was arrested by Policeman R. E. Davis, who saw Wilson hanging head down from a third-story window, he told the court. When the policeman reached Wilson he had a rope wrapped around his leg and was hanging out of the window. He was charged with intoxication.

Wilson insisted that he was a steeplejack and that men in his profession had to take chances, but the court fined him.

Ocoquan Prisoner Escapes. James Reed, colored, 30 years old, 2454 Snows court northwest, who has been serving a jail term for larceny, escaped early yesterday from the Ocoquan wharf, police were told. He was described as having a scar on his neck, and both ears half cut off.

PRESBYTERIAN BANQUET OPENS $150,000 DRIVE

Laymen and Clergy Begin Campaign to Finance Pensions for Retiring Pastors.

FUND WILL INITIATE PLAN

The local campaign drive for Washington's quota of $150,000 of the $1,500,000 pension fund which the Presbyterian churches throughout the country are raising for the retirement of their ministers after 35 years of service, was opened with a banquet last night of the committee of Presbyterian laymen and ministers of the District in the Franklin Square hotel.

Dr. Henry B. Master, general secretary of the board for ministerial relief and sustenance, of Philadelphia, and chief speaker of the evening, declared that the plan was based upon actuarial science, and that the fund would be the most useful money that the church had ever spent. It will assure the Presbyterian ministers of support during their declining years, so they can carry on their work unhampered by worries of the future, he said.

Dr. Masters stressed the point that the sound business basis of the plan takes the sting of charity out of the pensions. The minister puts 7 1/2 per cent and the church 2 1/2 per cent of their annual incomes in a fund for 35 years. The church completes the 10 per cent of annual income in recognition of their faithful services, and it can not be considered as charity, as the present pensions are.

The $150,000 will go toward completing the pensions of those who already have served part of the 35 years. Dr. Masters said, and the plan will become self-supporting in 15 years. Each minister will receive from $600 to $2,000 yearly. Judges Robert Anderson, of the Church of the Covenant; Colin H. Livingston, of the Fourth Street Presbyterian church, and Walter K. Handy, of the Arlington Presbyterian church, spoke to the assembly of over 100 from the layman's point of view. H. V. Williams, field director of the Baltimore synod, presided. John B. Lerner is chairman of the local campaign.

Weizmann to Address Meeting Here Sunday

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist movement, will be one of the principal speakers at the twelfth annual convention of the Zionist Mizrahi organization, which will convene Sunday in the Jewish Community center. Approximately 250 delegates, representing the leading orthodox Jews of the country, will attend the conference, the first session of which will be held at 8 o'clock Sunday. A general reception to the visiting delegates will take place Saturday night in the Tifereth Israel synagogue, Fourteenth and Euclid streets northwest.

YULE TREE DEDICATED BY GEORGETOWN CLUB

Wyckoff Accepts Gift for Government; Ceremony Held in Montrose Park

A Christmas fir tree, 15 feet high, donated to the government for community Christmas tree celebrations by the Georgetown Garden club, was dedicated yesterday in Montrose park. It was accepted for the government by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director, office of public buildings and public parks, and by J. B. Wyckoff, chairman of the community Christmas tree committee, Georgetown Citizens association, for that organization.

The dedication was made by Miss Emily C. Matthews, president of the club, who explained the need of a permanent yule tree for Christmas community celebrations in Georgetown. Mr. Wyckoff said his committee would decorate the tree and make other preparations for such celebrations.

The tree was planted Tuesday. Mrs. Herman H. Hollerith, founder of the garden club, threw a shovelful of earth about it and Mrs. Charles G. Warden, chairman of its civic committee, arranged the dedication program.

FRATERNAL BODIES IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS TOPIC OF MEETING

Question of Future Policy Arises When Board Approves Two Organizations.

BALLOU AND GILLIGAN ARGUE ON REGULATIONS

Learned Asks Action in Dangerous and Insanitary Conditions in Buildings.

The question of recognition of fraternities and sororities in the public schools, a question which has led to legal battles and caused school officials no end of embarrassment, was reopened yesterday at a meeting of the board of education in the Franklin school.

The question of the future policy of the board of education concerning recognition of fraternities in the public schools was brought up by Henry Gilligan, new member of the board, after that body had approved the recommendation of school officials to recognize the Phi Delta Sigma sorority and the Sigma Delta fraternity.

Mr. Gilligan declared that if the board approved these two organizations they should recognize any sorority or fraternity that cared to establish a chapter in the schools. Mr. Gilligan declared that the board of education should not follow a policy of letting in a chosen few and barring the rest of the organizations.

In reply, Dr. Ballou stated that it was the policy of the board to recognize sororities and fraternities recommended by school officials. It was made plain, however, that recommendations are not made on a wholesale basis.

The rules concerning recognition of fraternities in the schools, Dr. Ballou stated, call for the attendance of a member of the faculty of the particular school the fraternity established in to attend every meeting of the organization. If recognition of all sororities and fraternities who want to establish chapters in the different schools were permitted, Dr. Ballou stated, there would not be enough faculty members to go around.

At Future Meeting.

In an effort to spike discussion that hitherto has been embarrassing to school officials and members of the board of education, it was decided to discuss the question of fraternities at a future meeting of the board.

Dangerous and insanitary conditions in the schools which Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, at a former board meeting described as "transitory conditions," yesterday developed into a major problem for the board of education, as it was in danger of being caused by Dr. H. B. Learned to ask for immediate action and assistance from the board.

Smoke and gas filled rooms, splintered chairs, damp rooms, loose and broken plaster, drinking fountains that are exposed to "dust and dirt" and dogs in the vicinity, insanitary ventilation and heating and floors that are in danger of giving in, are but a few of the dangerous conditions which the board of education is confronted with in making the schools safe and healthy.

School officials this time created the general impression that these conditions would be eliminated rapidly. It developed yesterday, however, that many of these conditions, some of which have been outlined, still exist, with no indication that they will be eliminated in the near future.

The board yesterday authorized school officials to provide bus transportation for tubercular children who attend the Health and Harrison schools. The resignation of Miss Eva Wilson, as director of domestic art in divisions 10 to 13, was accepted.

To Award Prizes.

The secretary of the board was authorized to award the cash prizes offered under the provisions of the Galt legacy fund to students recommended by the principals of the Business and Dunbar high schools. The awards are made annually for the best essays on various subjects, submitted by high school pupils.

Recommendation that the board of education request the abandoned school building on Bates road be condemned and removed, was approved.

Efforts to curb the "dangerous speed" of Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis electric trains between Sheriff road and Sixty-first street northeast will be made by the board in an effort to protect school children in the vicinity. It was stated yesterday that pupils experience great difficulty in crossing the tracks of this railroad, due to the high speed with which the cars travel.

The board yesterday approved the request of officials of the Near East Relief to distribute literature announcing "bundle day" in the schools. A similar request was granted last year, and Dr. Ballou will invite school officials to cooperate with Harold F. Pellegrin, director of the local bureau of the organization.

Dr. Ballou announced that he had received a communication from the national Thanksgiving doll offering committee asking that school children of the city donate their old dolls for Thanksgiving to the inmates of orphan asylums in this vicinity.
